County relieved from voted debt

Fayette County can boast a claim few other counties in Ohio or even the United States can make in a day of rising costs and indebtedness.

As of Nov. 1, Fayette County became free of any voted, bonded indebtedness since 1941 with the payment of the Fayette Memorial Hospital bond.

The bond for the original construction of Fayette Memorial hospital was issued in July, 1946, for $360,000 in bonds at an interest rate of one and one-fourth per cent!

A total of $125,000 in bonds were issued in December, 1951 at the rate of one and one-half per cent with the first addition to the hospital being built.

A second addition was built in May, 1964, requiring $450,000 of bonds at an interest rate of two and seven-eighths per cent.

This last bond was paid off Nov. 1, 1974, according to county auditor Mary Morris and the Fayette County Board of Commissioners, to relieve the county of any voted, bonded indebtedness.

IN OTHER business related by the commissioners Tuesday was the granting of fleet insurance for county vehicles to the Charles Sheridan Insurance Agency.

The commissioners set the dog license fees for 1975 at the same rate as in 1974, or $4 for dogs and $20 for kennels.

The commissioners met with the Fayette County Regional Planning Committee of which they are members, Tuesday night to review two applications. The planning committee considered a request for federal funding by the village of Bloomingburg for sewage treatment and disposal facilities, for a grant of $150,000. The committee approved this request and will send its recommendations to the regional planning clearing house in Columbus for action.

A second request for funding by the Community Action Commission for various projects in the county was partially approved by the planning committee. The committee endorsed funding for three of the six projects requested and will also send these recommendations and suggestions to the Columbus clearing house.

Government concedes recession

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration officials, while admitting that the nation is entering a recession, say there is little danger of a depression.

"We are not now in a recession, but new figures will probably indicate we are moving into a recession," Ron Nessen, President Ford's press secretary, said Tuesday.

He said economic statistics for November will show a continued erosion of the nation's economy, which has been declining since the first of the year.

But there is little danger of the recession growing into a depression, according to Edgar Fiedler, an assistant secretary of the Treasury for economic affairs.

"I would never rule out the absolute possibility of a more severe decline, but in my own mind, the possibility is very small," Fiedler said.

He said he is hopeful the recession can reach its bottom by mid-1975 with an economic upturn after that. But he acknowledged, "I have no basis for forecasting it."

Another administration economist, Sidney L. Jones, said the nation's unemployment rate could rise to 7 per cent without programs to help, such as Ford's proposed expanded public service employment program.

Congress is expected to enact an expanded program.

Nessen indicated that the worsening economic outlook may cause President Ford to change some parts of his economic program, including the 5 per cent income surtax on upper-middle and upper incomes.

Congress eyes fat pay hikes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A lameduck effort is brewing for congressmen to vote themselves a pay raise of up to $15,900 and to boost salaries for other top federal officials.

Staff proposals disclosed Tuesday by Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, would boost congressmen's present $42,500 a year pay to between $55,400 and $58,400 by 1977.

Gross said the effort is obviously planned during Congress' lameduck session, which starts next week, in what he called "an almost incredible, unconscionable move at this moment."

Chairman Gale W. McGee, D-Wyo., of the Senate Post Office committee confirmed pay raise proposals have been drafted but suggested no effort will be made to put one through Congress unless President Ford leads the drive.

McGee said through a spokesman he thinks a pay raise for congressmen, federal judges and agency supervisors is needed, particularly by 9,000 to 10,000 supervisors whose pay is now frozen at $36,000.

But he said in view of the Senate's rejection in March of proposed pay raises, including a hike to $52,800 for congressmen, it would be useless to make another try unless Ford asks for it.

"There's no use going through another bloodbath for nothing," said the McGee spokesman. "We're going to have to meet with the President and see if something can be worked out."

But Gross said it would be an outrage for congressmen to vote themselves and other top officials a pay raise while Ford and Congress' Democratic leaders are declaring war on inflation.

Another Iowa Republican, Rep. Bill Scherle, called the proposals a "blueprint to fleece the taxpayers' pockets."

Gross said backers of the pay raise are bent on getting Congress' action during the lameduck session in hopes of getting more votes and letting the old Congress, rather than the new one convening in January, take the blame.

The 92 lameduck House members retiring or defeated in last week's election no longer have anything to lose by voting for a pay raise. And many returning congressmen might be more willing to vote for a pay raise at a time when their next reelection is a full two years away.

A House source said staff development of pay raise proposals was originally authorized by lameduck House Post Office Committee Chairman Thaddeus J. Dulski, D-N.Y. Dulski could not be reached for comment in his Buffalo, N.Y., district.

Rockefeller admits role in book cash

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nelson A. Rockefeller testified today that he asked his brother Laurance to help find investors to finance a book critical of former Supreme Court Justice Arthur J. Goldberg, his 1970 opponent for New York governor.

The vice presidential nominee's testimony portrayed him as more central to the publication of the book than he has so far acknowledged. He said any discrepancies are due to a "sketchy" memory rather than any attempt to cover up the facts.

Testifying before live television cameras in the Senate Caucus Room, Rockefeller told Rules Committee members that a controversial series of loans and gifts by him to close aides and public officials posed no conflict of interest and were not intended to corrupt those who accepted them.

In a counterattack aimed at critics of those transactions, Rockefeller said his family's great fortune does not blind him to the need for morality in public service.

The loans and gifts sprang from a personal sense of "sharing," Rockefeller said, and added: "I do not believe the day has yet come ... where the decencies of human relationships disqualify one for public office."

Some Rockefeller critics have suggested that at least some of the gifts and loans may have violated New York state law. Chairman Howard W. Cannon of the Rules Committee said the "nagging question" lingers as to whether they placed those who received them into "psychological servitude" to Rockefeller — whether or not that was intended.

"There is a sign on the political wall that reads, 'No tipping allowed,'" Cannon said.

It is illegal in New York to give public officials gifts valued at more than $25 with the purpose of influencing or rewarding official conduct. But Rockefeller said he had no such intent.

ABC broadcast today's session under a rotation set up by the three major television networks.

Rockefeller also disclosed that in the years 1957-1974 he gave a total of $3.26 million to Republican campaigns, including $1 million to his own fruitless attempts to win the GOP presidential nomination.

The political gifts included $62,025 to former President Richard M. Nixon's 1972 campaign and $200,000 to the 1968 campaign for the nomination of George M. Romney.

Rockefeller said that over the last 17 years his brothers John, Laurance and David, and his sister Abby gave a total of $2.85 million in support of his four state and three national campaigns.

He said his stepmother, the late Martha Baird Rockefeller, gave him an average of $1.5 million for each of the seven campaigns.

New proposal brightens coal talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Coal mine operators produced a new contract offer, dramatically brightening the outlook for settling a nationwide coal strike that triggered thousands of layoffs in other industries during its first day.

Union and industry negotiators, emerging early today from a 12-hour bargaining session, indicated they are close to agreement.

Harry Patrick, United Mine Workers secretary-treasurer, said the proposal was "pretty good." Chief industry negotiator Guy Farmer said it "could settle the contract."

UMW President Arnold Miller said union leaders were studying the proposal and would resume negotiations later today.

The industry made its proposal late Tuesday night as the day-old strike tightened its grip on the already weakening economy. U.S. Steel Corp., the nation's biggest producer, announced a 25 per cent production cutback and said it would lay off 13,700 employes this week. Major railroads furloughed more than 2,000 workers.

The giant Tennessee Valley Authority, with only a 44-day coal reserve, called for a voluntary cutback in electricity use in its seven-state power area. It asked for a 50 per cent reduction in street lighting, shorter business hours, a ban on outdoor electrical advertising and the lowering of thermostats to 65 degrees.

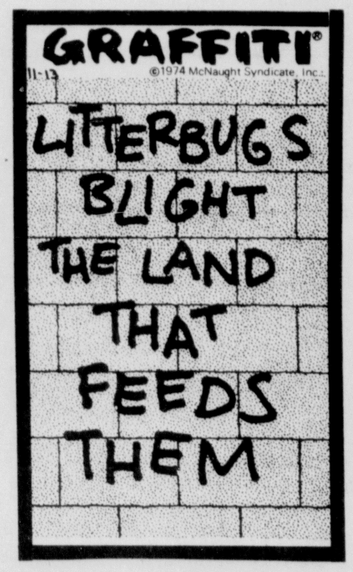
In the coal fields, striking miners debated how long they could hold out without paychecks or strike benefits, which the UMW does not pay.

The strike, which began officially at 12:01 a.m. Tuesday, shut down mines producing 70 per cent of the nation's coal. Even if a tentative agreement was reached this week, the UMW said it would take at least two weeks to get a new contract ratified and to put the mines to work again.

Farmer described the new industry offer as "a complete, total package," which was put forth "not as a bargaining gambit" but as a proposal "that could settle the contract."

Patrick agreed, saying it put both sides "closer together than ever before" after nine weeks of negotiations. "At this point, I'm very, very optimistic that we can wrap this thing up very soon," he told newsmen.

COAL WAITING TO MOVE — Two barges and a string of coal cars along the Ohio River in Pittsburgh, Pa., were the last shipments of coal to move before the UMW strike took effect.



Housing bill wins Senate approval

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A long-awaited bill aimed at providing more housing for Ohio's low and moderate income families cleared a one-day legislative session Tuesday and went to the desk of Gov. John J. Gilligan.

It represented a victory after three years of effort by the outgoing chief executive, but ironically, it took a nudge from GOP Gov.-Elect James A. Rhodes to get the job done.

Rhodes sent a letter to reluctant Republicans in the Senate, saying in part that the emergency legislation is needed to give "badly needed" housing to those on low incomes "particularly the elderly," and asserted it will help provide jobs for Ohioans, a favorite campaign theme of the former two-term governor.

The governor-elect's letter pried the bill from the Senate Finance Committee (8-1) with only lame duck Sen. Howard C. Cook, R-1 Toledo dissenting, and then on to 27-2 floor approval.

The House concurred in Senate amendments to the measure, which passed the lower chamber originally July 19, by a vote of 72-14. Legislative aides of Gilligan said he probably will sign it within a few days.

Senators and representatives pulled from the rules committees of the two chambers a total of six bills and one resolution, passing them before winding up all major business of the 110th General Assembly which convened Jan. 1, 1973.

Skeleton sessions are planned for final adjournment Dec. 10.

One of the resurrected bills, which would have died had it not been for the one-day session to meet what was described as Ohio's housing crisis, also was influenced by Rhodes in 1970.

It called for stricter requirements for Ohioans obtaining real estate brokers' and salesmen's licenses. A special commission was named by Gilligan to draft the bill after Rhodes and some Republican friends, but Democrats over the years as well, were challenged for the manner in which they obtained licenses.

Rhodes got his upon leaving office after an oral examination.

The measure, with bi-partisan support, provides for a real estate licensing superintendent and expands membership on the present three-member licensing board to five, giving it a public representative for the first time. Written examinations also are required specifically.

Cook, defeated in a bid for re-election in the May primary, did not mention Rhodes by name, but charged in a floor speech that Republicans did a "flip flop," yielding in 24 hours to the demands of big labor unions pressing for the housing bill.

Metzenbaum might quit

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Senators tend to resent newcomers who get a head start via resignation of the senator they replace, Sen. Howard Metzenbaum says, but he says he would consider early resignation if John Glenn asked him to do so.

"I'm not at all sure John Glenn would want to be a party to coming in that way," Metzenbaum added Wednesday, "but I wouldn't close the door to the senator-elect if he wants to discuss it."

He said he had given the matter little thought and that he hadn't talked with Glenn about it.

Metzenbaum, like Glenn a Democrat, said he has found resentment among senators over what he called "such political gamesmanship that would give a leg up on seniority.

"I've talked with a number of other senators who said this happened to them when they came in and they never forgave those who got ahead of them that way," Metzenbaum added.

He also said that "there are still a number of matters I hope to conclude before the end of the session."

Glenn, who defeated Metzenbaum in a hard-fought primary last May, said after hearing the remarks that Metzenbaum is "playing little games ... who talks to whom or who asks whom, all that kind of stuff."

If Metzenbaum were to resign from the Senate before his term expires Jan. 3, Glenn could fill the seat and outrank seven other freshmen Democrats elected last week.

Metzenbaum said he intends to stay in the Senate until the end of Congress' current lameduck session.

He said he had made a commitment to Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield "that I would continue working right through the session."

Rhodes increases ballot margin

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — James A. Rhodes' margin in Ohio's gubernatorial election Nov. 5 has increased to 13,620— an increase of 36 votes—in written reports received so far by Secretary of State Ted W. Brown, his office said today.

The former Republican governor's lead as of the day after the election, on the basis of telephoned reports, stood at 13,584 over Democratic Gov. John J. Gilligan.

Brown said the latest update was on the basis of written reports from 18 counties, most of them considered Republican counties.

Gasoline tax refuses to die

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Energy Administration has sent President Ford a long menu of policy choices for reducing U.S. dependence on foreign oil, but the featured listings are conservation measures like extra gasoline taxes and restrictions on downtown parking.

The 780-page "Project Independence" report published Tuesday by the FEA had been ordered by former President Richard M. Nixon, who said it should be a "blueprint" for the United States to achieve independence from imported oil by 1980.

However, the study later was downgraded to an "option paper" and it concludes that complete oil independence by 1980 is neither possible nor desirable.

As expected the report drew mixed reviews.

Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton said the report "is an excellent beginning" on a national energy policy. Morton forced the ouster of FEA Administrator John C. Sawhill, who oversaw the compilation of the study.

"Sound conservation practices will be combined with programs of research and development to provide the American people with a sound energy base during the decade ahead," Morton said.

Thirteen citizen groups called it a "positive — though faltering — first step," while the National Coal Association termed it a "flawed document" that gives short shrift to coal.

The study's suggestions on extra gasoline taxes and downtown parking restrictions theoretically would reduce gasoline consumption and make mass transit more attractive.

President Ford earlier this year rejected higher gasoline taxes, although some members of his administration support such a move.

Reduced energy demand was one of three main strategies for lessening oil imports by 1985, the others being an acceleration of domestic fuel production and creation of oil stockpiles for protection against international blackmail by oil exporting countries.

The report offered no recommendations, leaving that up to Morton as chairman of the President's cabinet-level Energy Resources Council.

Other fuel-saving possibilities included in the report were:

—A mandatory standard for 20-miles-per-gallon automobile performance.

—A 25 per cent tax credit for insulating existing homes.

—Heating and cooling standards, lighting standards, and a 15 per cent energy-improvement investment credit for commercial buildings.

—Efficiency standards for appliances.

—Industrial conservation, supported by research programs.

—Projects to demonstrate and promote energy conservation standards for power plants.

The report said energy conservation could quickly reduce dependence on oil imports and the dollar-drain; ease inflation; stretch domestic oil and gas supplies; and make other policy decisions more reliable.

Arafat arrives for U.S. meeting

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Surrounded by bodyguards, Yasir Arafat landed by helicopter in the United Nations' garden today to take to the General Assembly his case for a Palestinian state.

He was immediately whisked inside U.N. headquarters, and Saadat Hassan, the permanent representative of the Palestine Liberation Organization in New York, said Arafat was taking a nap.

He declined to say where the bearded, 44-year-old PLO leader was, but indicated he was dozing in Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim's personal apartment on the 38th floor.

Arafat and his party arrived from Kennedy Airport after a flight from Algiers. Their two choppers touched down in the U.N. garden just before 7 a.m.

Hassan said the party included Arafat, four advisers and 10-12 Palestinian security men, swelling the PLO contingent to about 30-32 persons.

Security for Arafat's arrival was unprecedented in New York, where feeling against the PLO runs high among the city's two million Jewish residents.

There were several police and Coast Guard launches in the East River immediately behind the 39-story glass, steel and stone building.

The 16-acre U.N. complex was closed to the public. Outsiders could enter only with special passes from a temporary outpost across the street.

New York police canceled all days off and redistributed its manpower to concentrate on the midtown Manhattan area, where 16 PLO members were staying in the Waldorf Towers section of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

Police used bomb-sniffing German shepherds to comb through the garage, elevators and five floors where 15 suites were reserved for the PLO delegation, but found nothing. The suites range in price from $150-$450 a day.

Outside, some 1,000 police kept demonstrators away from the hotel. Police sharpshooters were perched in nearby skyscrapers and a police helicopter shuttled from the hotel to the U.N. headquarters, keeping an eye out for demonstrations.

Snow, cold rain chill eastern U.S.

By The Associated Press

Snow and rain fell over a large part of the northern half of the nation from the Rockies to the Atlantic today and a frosty chill dipped deep into the South.

While snowfall generally was light, up to 3 inches was expected by nightfall in parts of southern Minnesota and adjacent South Dakota. One-inch accumulations were common overnight in sections of North Dakota, Upper Michigan and upstate New York.

An additional inch at Hancock, Mich., brought the depth in that normally heavy-snow region to 6 inches before dawn.

Rain and drizzle sprinkled areas south of the snow belt and were widespread from the Ohio Valley to New England.

Clear skies prevailed across the South, but temperatures dropped into the crisp middle and lower 30s as far south as central Georgia.

In contrast, 90-degree heat held sway through Southern California again Tuesday. The mercury bulged to 91 at San Diego, 7 degrees above the previous record for the date, and soared to 93 under clear skies at Los Angeles, also a record for Nov. 12 there.

Strong winds raked the high Plains from northeastern Colorado to southeastern Montana and held temperatures there in the 50s overnight. Gusts to 48 miles an hour rocked Cheyenne, Wyo., and a high-wind warning was posted for sections of northeast Colorado.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 21 at Duluth, Hibbing and International Falls, Minn., to 71 at Los Angeles.

Man enters innocent plea in son's poisoning death

HOUSTON (AP) — Ronald C. O'Bryan has pleaded innocent to charges he killed his eightyear-old son by giving him poisoned Halloween candy.

The portly, 30-year-old optician stood almost without expression Tuesday as prosecutor Mike Minton read indictments charging him with poisoning his son, Timothy, 8, and attempting to poison his daughter, Elizabeth Lane O'Bryan, 5, to collect some $61,000 in insurance.

District Court Judge Frank C. Price set Jan. 6 as the date for O'Bryan's trial and a Dec. 16 date for pre-trial hearings.

O'Bryan is also charged with attempting to kill three other children by placing potassium cyanide in Halloween candy — in an attempt to cover up the death of his son.

Judge Price appointed a Dallas lawyer, Richard Harrison, to represent O'Bryan after the defendant said he was broke and could not afford counsel. Harrison had been representing O'Bryan since his arrest last week.

Earlier Tuesday, District Court Judge Stanley Kirk ruled against reduction in O'Bryan's $100,000 bond because of the nature of the alleged offenses.

O'Bryan was charged with capital murder in his son's death under the same statute that punishes murder for hire. If convicted, he could be given the death penalty.

Judge Kirk set bonds of $25,000 each in the other four attempted murder indictments.

Robert Ballew Jr., an insurance agent, testified that O'Bryan called him late last September and wanted to insure the lives of his children for $20,000 each.

Both Ballew and Eugene T. Shephard Jr., cashier of a Pasadena bank where O'Bryan had obtained $10,000 more in insurance policies on his children's lives through a bank club, testified that the defendant called them on on the morning after his son died of poisoning to report the death.

A chemical salesman, David Lee Jackson, said O'Bryan had come into his shop sometime during the latter part of October and attempted to buy potassium cyanide. He said that only a large five-pound jug of the chemical was available, and O'Bryan was apparently discouraged by the $40 to $50 price tag, and did not make the purchase.

Jackson said he recommended O'Bryan try another chemical firm.

Food price hikes studied at hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's inflation watchdog agency is directing its first major effort at supermarkets which raise the price of goods already on display. But a prominent consumer organization is boycotting the effort because it says the practice costs shoppers less than a dime a week.

The Council on Wage and Price Stability opens hearings on the practice today. The hearings represent to a large degree the council's ultimate weapon in the government's war on inflation.

Council Director Albert Rees says the hearings follow widespread irritation among consumers who feel they are being gouged by layers of successively higher price stickers on groceries and other products.

But the executive director of Consumers Union, a non-profit product-testing organization, declined an invitation to testify.

The official, Rhoda H. Karpatkin, said the issue is insignificant, making a difference of less than a dime a week in a family's weekly food bill.

"Your failure to deal with the serious issues may inevitably lead to speculation over whether these hearings are some form of government put-on," she wrote to Virginia Knauer, President Ford's consumer adviser. Knauer and Rees are cochairing the hearings.

The invitation to testify was accepted, however, by the Consumer Federation of America and the National Consumers Congress.

Because the council can't roll back wage or price increases, public hearings are its only recourse short of requesting a personal appeal from President Ford to bring business or labor into line.

Some food chains have discarded the practice of marking up prices of items on the shelf.

"We want to get them to say why they've announced their policy and find out why some of the other chains have not announced such a policy," Rees said in an interview.

But the witness list included no chains still marking up shelf items.

A council spoksman explained that the list of industry witnesses was prepared by the National Association of Food Chains. An association spokesman said it had "no particular motivation" for not including representatives of stores that mark up shelf prices.

"This is adequate as far as we're concerned," said the council spokesman.

Rees has said the hearings are part of a larger investigation into the price increases tacked on by supermarkets, wholesalers and other middlemen as food moves from the farm to shopping bags.

Alaska braces for storm, new waves of flooding

NOME, Alaka (AP) — Communities along the storm-battered northwest Alaska coast braced for a second powerful storm today as flood waters began to recede.

No casualties were reported after Bering Sea waves whipped inland by strong winds flooded sections of Nome and surrounding villages in what Gov. William A. Egan called a "full scale disaster."

Nome and some other communities along the coast were without adequate food, drinking water and power as the second storm approached.

Early today forecasters at the National Weather Service in Anchorage were tracking a second storm front that appeared destined to follow closely the trail of the first hurricane-force winds.

"Right now this second storm is near Adak Island in the Aleutian chain and it's going eastward at a very fast rate," said forecaster Dave Evanson. "I think it will turn northeastward and go into the western part of Alaska and follow the same pattern except we expect this one will be more to the east and therefore more inland."

Evanson said the storm center will come close to Nome but is likely to be a greater threat to surrounding villages.

The weather service said flood waters in the area were dropping early today but portions of Nome which had been under five feet of water were still covered.

Some buildings were destroyed. Residents battled the floodwaters in high winds and freezing temperatures.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, anxiously watching developments in the coal strike, took a substantial early loss today, then gained most of it back again.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was exactly unchanged at 659.18 in a rebound from a loss of more than 7 points earlier. Losers continued to hold a moderate edge on gainers over all on the New York Stock Exchange, however.

Analysts said reports of progress in coal contract talks Tuesday night helped take the edge off the early selloff.

ITE Imperial was the most-active issue on the Big Board, up ⅝ at 14¾. A 171,400-share block traded at that price.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index was down .29 at 68.26.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index was off .12 at 38.88.

Syntex, the Amex volume leader, rose ¼ to 39⅞.

Housing bill

Republicans, led by Senate Finance Chairman Max Dennis, R-10 Wilmington, had been set to block the bill on Monday before a dinner meeting with Rhodes Monday night and the letter that followed about noon Tuesday.

Cook said he favored the bill in concept. Several members of both chambers joined the Toledoan in stating they feared a revenue bond feature of the legislation will fail to meet court tests. They asserted the state cannot take advantage of the bond issue plan without voter approval, even though bonds would be repaid with non-tax revenues.

Indeed, Rhodes indicated he had similar fears. In his letter, he told the Republican senators that if the courts should strike down that part of the bill, "we have the alternative to place a housing authority bill, supported by the full faith and credit of the state, before the people of Ohio. . .?

Dennis' committee made several technical changes before the Senate and House finally bought the bill. Among them was the addition of language from the federal Davis-Bacon act requiring the payment of union level wages on all residential construction involving eight or more housing units.

That language reflected a compromise worked out at the national level earlier this year between housing interest parties which lobbied successfully for passage of the 1974 Housing and Community Development Act.

The bill, which the Gilligan Administration requested in 1971, increases the power of the existing seven-member Ohio Housing Development Board.

Under its provisions, the board would be able to issue tax free revenue bonds and then make and guarantee housing loans to individuals, builders, developers, and others. Bonds and loans could start to flow late next year, barring adverse court rulings.

Purchasers of the bond would have to pay no tax on earnings, which under current market conditions, probably would be about 7 per cent. The board then could make loans at 1 or 2 per cent above 7 per cent — just enough to cover administrative costs.

William A. Losoncy, executive director of the board, said the measures makes the agency "active instead of passive." Its current duties consist primarily of providing seed money to non-profit organizations so that they can obtain housing loans.

The board has used about $400,000 so far in its three years of existence, with the funds coming from unclaimed funds held by the state for longer than 10 years. So far, the agency has helped provide only about 700 housing units.

An unanswered question

A bright high school girl of our acquaintance put a hard question to us a couple of days after the election. How come, she inquired, only 38 per cent of the country's voting-age population turned out at the polls?

The question was not asked casually. The girl badly wanted an answer, all the more so because she had suffered a big disappointment on election day: having followed the campaigning at local, state and national levels with keen interest, she was too young to vote. She could not understand why so many who were eligible to exercise this great privilege missed the opportunity.

We find it hard to understand, too. The question is a galling and disquieting one for any citizen concerned about the health of our system of representative government. For what a 38 per cent turnout at the polls indicates is that far more than half of the electorate lacked sufficient interest to bother voting even though Watergate so unmistakably underscored the importance of voting.

Some argue that Watergate-bred cynicism about the political process was a principal factor in keeping people at home on election day. This may be, but how wrong-headed that reaction is! When the system is under stress, when problems cry out for action, that is the time for citizens to make their voices heard.

A WORD EDGEWISE . . . . By John P. Roche

Nixon's revenge?

WASHINGTON — There really isn't much to say about the election that was not said in anticipation. However, the consequences of the overwhelming Democratic victory are clouding a number of crystal balls. It could be an omen of a great triumph in 1976, returning the Democrats to the White House. On the other hand, it could be Richard Nixon's revenge.

The essential problem lies in the nature of Congress, which is a collective noun, not a cohesive institution. To put it differently, Congress has a superb talent for wrecking operations. But when it comes to creating something, the legislators are simply (except under extraordinary circumstances) incompetent. Since the nation was started, it has been the President's job to serve. With the ball in its court, the legislature can then crank up and send the proposal off to a committee, which in turn sends it to a sub-committee. If money is involved, as it usually is, the Presidential project has to go through two labyrinths in each House.

Occasionally you get efficient party leadership in Congress capable of initiative vis-a-vis the President. This was the case in the 1950s, when Speaker Sam Rayburn and Senate Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson ran a couple of tight ships. But the day Johnson took the veil as Vice President, the Senate heaved a collective sigh of relief and settled down to a peaceful life with Mike Mansfield. In fairness to the Montana Senator, one of his convictions is that the Senate should not be whipped into line: He is able and active, but refuses to put the arm on a recalcitrant colleague.

On the House side, the death of Rayburn put John McCormack into the Speaker's chair. In my judgment, McCormack's talents have been grossly underestimated. He may not have been a Rayburn, but by comparison with gentle Carl Albert he looks, in retrospect, like Napoleon. To summarize, the enormous Democratic majorities that will mass in both houses next January will be virtually leaderless.

Moreover, it is an odd truth that party discipline is easier to maintain on a small majority than a big one. The huge majorities that rode in on F.D.R.'s coattails in 1936 soon degenerated into squabbling factions. The Republicans, confronted by Roosevelt's 1937 "Supreme Court Packing" proposal, made a deliberate decision to lie low and let the Democrats kill each other. It worked like a charm.

If we look at the type of Democrats who were elected this time, we find that they are liberal and action-oriented. The Conservative Coalition took it on the chin, and the Congress should be "veto-proof." The last time this happened was in 1964, and the inhabitant of the White House was delighted — he wasn't worried about getting his vetoes sustained, but in passing progressive legislation. Today, however, we have a conservative President with two years in which to clobber the Democrats for not, say, solving inflation.

I don't think Mr. Ford has the foggiest notion of what to do about the economy. He is not alone in this, but he is going to be sitting there, batting down various congressional measures on the ground that they will make the situation worse. Congress will override his vetoes, but in the collective political consciousness of the American people the Democrats will be in the cross hairs. If inflation increases (as I'm afraid it will), President Ford will be in the position in 1976 of saying, "Look friends, you sent me this bunch of impractical dreamers. What have they done? Is food cheaper? Are homes being built? This time give me a Congress I can work with."

Your Horoscope

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 14

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)

A mixed day, bringing some favorable and some adverse influences. Job associates are in tune with your efforts right now, but you can expect some ups and downs in a romantic situation.

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)

Business and domestic matters may conflict with each other. Possibly disturbed, your judgment may be clouded. Don't commit yourself to any new undertaking.

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21)

Some challenges possible, but face them—with confidence. With the Geminian's excellent foresight and ingenuity, you should solve all situations successfully.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)

A good day for promoting business matters, with some unexpected good luck possible. Look for unusual cooperation from associates.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Even though stars promise some new opportunities for advancement, study each proposition and suggestion from the long-range point of view. Go beyond the immediate in your thinking.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Routine, the things you planned and expected would run "just so" may suffer some delays now. Take in stride, however, and go on to something else until clouds lift and you get a better perspective.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Avoid overtaxing yourself—a tendency now. Temper your ambitions and desires with common sense.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

A good day for closing profitable deals or arriving at accords which will make them possible. Cut a few corners if you can.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Get important matters out of the way by noon, if possible. Certain planetary restrictions in the p.m. could bring about delays, unexpected interruptions.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Do not judge the actions of others lightly—or with suspicion. Study all factors carefully and you will arrive at more reliable conclusions.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

You can make unusual progress in many areas now. Get your mind clucking early, and in tune with present trends.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to Feb. 19)

Aspects indicate the possibility of some deception in your area. Be alert and ready to counteract with firmness. Above all, avoid those who have deceived you before.

YOU BORN TODAY are, in some ways, a dual personality. You have an extremely frivolous side which, if you emphasize, could lead to bohemianism and a complete waste of your many talents. On the other hand, there's the serious side which, if developed along with your fine abilities, could bring you to top-flight success. You could shine in the world of science—especially in medicine, chemistry, minerology or engineering. But you also have creative inclinations and may take up art or music as a career.

Letter To The Editor

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

All of us acquainted with the neighborhood school concept have a little knowledge as to what is being carried out there. (Mind you, I said little knowledge).

I have had various individuals tell me they no longer feel like supporting our schools because children are being pampered beyond reason simply by a misguided few, children are not learning in the schools, children are undisciplined to the point of being arrogant and destructive, teachers are not interested in the children's education and welfare, school administrators are on an ego trip creating chaos in the educational process, money is being spent on such trivial things as carpeting and that sports and social pleasures appearing the overriding reasons for going to school.

Why is the wrong side, or what appears to be the wrong side, always brought out? There are young people earnestly seeking a good education; there are many young people who respect administrators and teachers; there are many young people who respect property rights and acts of vandalism never enter their minds; there are teachers and administrators who adhere strongly to principles involving education and the ultimate goals of their professions; there are young people interested in sports and social activities knowing well their education is primary; and there are school administrators who care for various points of view and improving educational procedures.

So why always look at the ugliness of a situation? There is good and bad in everything we do.

Without support of the Miami Trace electorate, those who care are forgotten. The young people will pay for the misguided few. Please reconsider your stance in this situation and support those who care. Without you, we fail. With you, we can restore and improve educational programs for the young people in the Miami Trace schools.

Road and bridge costs skyrocket

By ROBERT E. MILLER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A private evaluation of Ohio's rural roads and bridges estimates it would cost almost $4.5 billion to bring them up to par.

The Road Information Program (TRIP), a national organization created by roadbuilding firms in the 50 states, gave the information in a recent report on Ohio. Similar information went to other states.

State Transportation Director J. Phillip Richley did not dispute the figure and said state and local officials have known of the problem for years.

"They don't give us any answers — such as where to get the money," Richley said.

He also questioned if there may be political motivation by groups such as the Ohio Contractors Association which is waging an effort in Washington and Ohio to safeguard federal and state monies earmarked for roadbuilding. Richley noted growing pressure for other modes of transportation.

The Ohio Constitution earmarks revenue from the 11-cents per gallon gasoline tax and other use taxes for highway improvements and construction. Proposals to lift the constitutional restriction have been offered in recent legislative sessions.

TRIP's report stated Ohio has about 47,022 miles of roads that are deficient and in need of repair. Richley said only 17,000 miles of the total are state highways while the others are county and township roads.

The contractors' group said the cost of bringing roads up to desired standards is $3.9 billion, based on 1974 construction costs. This would involve correcting broken pavement, dangerous curves and lack of road berm space.

The study listed 5,910 Ohio Bridges — among a total of 39,000—as in need of repair and estimated the cost at $513 million, an average of $86,850 per bridge. It noted they are "overage and outmoded" for present vehicle requirements.

The report noted no bridges are in danger of collapse if existing weight limits are followed.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

An overdose of peaches?

DEAR ABBY: I read in your column that a guy named Walter, age 52, had a heart attack, and he got well enough to play tennis three times a week, but not well enough to make love to his old lady.

I am 56, have had two heart attacks, and I make love to three different dames three nights a week.

Tennis I'll leave to Walter. Sign me . .

GREEDY IN GEORGIA

DEAR GREEDY: Too many peaches could give you more than an heart attack.

DEAR ABBY: How do you forget a guy? He and I had a great relationship for two months, then his old girl friend started calling him and he started seeing her again, and that's when I lost him.

He said he thought he could care for me, and I know he meant it. I fell in love with him the first night we were alone together.

When the other girl was out of the picture, things were perfect between us, but when she came back, I gradually saw him less and less. Finally I couldn't stand it any longer and told him we had to talk openly and freely. He said he cared for the other girl a lot, but he cared for me, too. He even admitted that he didn't know why he cared for the other girl because she treated him like dirt, and I treated him good.

Abby, is this what I get for being nice? I told him I couldn't handle a part-time relationship, and he said he'd think it over.

I haven't heard from him since. I am miserable and depressed. Should I call him and ask if there is still hope for us? I am 22 and he is 21. The other girl is 19. Please help me.

MISERABLE

DEAR MISERABLE: You caught him temporarily-on the rebound-but the moment his old girl friend whistled, he came running, which proves his feeling for her was only dormant, not dead.

It's strange how some people prefer those who treat them like "dirt." (They practically ask for abuse because unconsciously they don't have a very high opinion of themselves, and feel they deserve it.)

I know it's not easy to "forget" a guy you think you love, but if you concentrate on other things, instead of dwelling on him, you can do it. Start today!

DEAR ABBY: Regarding baby-sitters who write and complain that they can't stand dirty houses:

I was a sitter once myself, for many years, in fact. Some of the houses where I went to sit were very untidy, to say the least. But why complain and act so self-righteous? Some women are poor housekeepers because they never were taught any different. Some are lazy, and others don't feel very well most of the time.

Instead of complaining about the messy house, why not clean it up? Then you can "sit" in a clean house and also have the indescribably inner joy of helping others without being told, or expecting to be paid for it. It will make you feel good all over.

Above all, be charitable, and don't tell others about the woman's poor housekeeping. And read Corinthians 13. We all need love.

MRS. W.R. KENNEWICK, WASH.

DEAR MRS. R.: You are beautiful.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "NAGGER" IN WATERLOO, IA.: It's okay to nag your children to write their thank you notes. (Very few will unless they're nagged). But it's not okay to nag them to sit up straight, talk more slowly and distinctly, and to refrain from interrupting when someone else is talking. (An occasional reminder is much more effective. Constant naggin will cause them to tune you out entirely.)

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

On this date in 1956, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that segregation of the races on public buses was unconstitutional.

On this date:

In 1794, President George Washington sent an army into Pennsylvania to suppress an uprising by frontiersmen, known as the Whiskey Rebellion.

In 1834, California adopted a state constitution.

In 1918, the Republic of Austria was proclaimed.

In 1941, in World War II, the British aircraft carrier, "Ark Royal," was torpedoed and sunk in the Mediterranean, and only 18 of the crew survived.

In 1942, the Pacific War naval Battle of Guadalcanal began. It ended in defeat for Japan.

In 1970, West Germany and Poland agreed on a treaty fixing the Oder-Neisse line as a border.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Set aside 90 minutes tonight for "The Gun," a made-for-TV movie appearing on ABC. It's an uncommonly good drama with an unlikely star — a .38 caliber revolver.

The question the show poses is simple: What happens to one gun after it leaves the manufacturer? But the answers that come in a finely-sketched series of vignettes may leave viewers wondering if any handgun should be allowed in the civilian marketplace at all.

The revolver in tonight's show is seen in a variety of roles — as a deadly instrument of self-protection, of quick profit, of mental illness, of crime, of innocent sport and finally of accidental tragedy.

The gun-watch covers a period of about four years, starting with the revolver's first owner, a wealthy, middle-aged clothing manufacturer who buys the piece for $68.50.

His home has been burglarized, we soon learn, and he wants the artillery for protection of his family.

He knows nothing about guns and is initially hesitant about buying one until an earnest salesman at a gun shop convinces him the revolver is entirely safe when handled properly.

All one really needs to do, the salesman says, is take about an hour's worth of lessons from a qualified firearms instructor.

"There's nothing complicated about it," he says of the gun. "It's just a piece of machinery like your car."

The customer's wife subsequently persuades him to get rid of the revolver, which he does by giving it to an elderly guard at his plant — with all the proper transfer forms filled out, of course.

The guard promptly hocks the gun. Whereupon an emotionally disturbed junior executive type forcibly acquires the revolver, paying for it while telling the pawnshop owner at gunpoint he can't wait the five days state law requires for the transfer of handguns.

Turns out the executive, grippingly portrayed by David Huffman, has lost his marbles because he can't cope with the stress of losing his job in a personnel cutback at the corporation for which he works.

And, in one of the most quietly chilling scenes I've ever seen on TV, he takes the loaded gun to a downtown plaza filled with office workers at lunch, to act out a silent fantasy of revenge.

Fortunately, there's no bloodshed. But even after his capture, the gun still isn't under lock and key. It's illegally acquired by two other men — one for family protection, the other for crime.

And even when police finally seize and put it in a collection of weapons earmarked for destruction, the gun survives, taken home by a truck driver for use in target practice.

Despite its four-year existence, the revolver is fired just once. But that one shot is the most sad, shocking moment in the show.

To learn why, watch "The Gun" tonight. Written by Emmy-winners Richard Levinson and William Link, it's a low-key, yet powerful program that manages to be solidly entertaining and thought-provoking at the same time.

Abortion bills paid

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The state auditor's office has begun complying with a court order to pay bills submitted for abortions performed on Ohio welfare recipients, it was announced Tuesday.

State Auditor-elect Thomas Ferguson, currently deputy state auditor, confirmed that the office had paid $42,003 in abortion bills as of last Friday and has approved bills totaling an additional $199,494 for payment.

The announcement was made by the Ohio chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union.

The ACLU and the National Organization for Women filed the original suit to require the auditor's office to pay the cost of welfare abortions.

State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson had refused to pay the physicians' bills until he received a court order.

The auditor's office had appealed the order issued by U.S. District Judge Robert M. Duncan and now is seeking a stay of the order in the U.S. District Court of Appeals.

Spiraling costs spelled out

NEW YORK (AP) — The pocket electronic calculator remains a hot item for retailers despite declining consumer enthusiasm, probably because it makes it possible to determine where you are in relation to inflation.

Think about it: When prices are rising at 1 or 1.5 per cent, as they did in the late 1950s and early 1960s, a simple pencil or an abacus can tell you what your dollar will be worth 10 years hence.

When they're rising at 12.1 per cent, as they did from September 1973 through September 1974, you really can't determine quickly that a $12,000 income would have to grow to $37,604 by 1984 in order to buy as much.

But with a calculator you just punch out the magic number 3,1337. Multiplying any sum by that number will tell you how much money you'd have to have in 1984 to match that sum's buying power in 1974, if inflation continues at the same rate.

Using that key number — which means it will take $3.13 by 1984 to buy what a dollar gets you today or, to put it another way, that the 1984 dollar will be worth less than 32 cents in comparison with the 1974 dollar — they find:

—Even if you paid no income tax, to match the buying power of a $7,500 annual income today you would have to earn $23,503 in 1984, if the present rate of inflation continues.

The first phrase of that preceding paragraph is, of course, almost meanlingness. Not only will you have to pay a tax, but unless the tax laws are changed you'll be in a higher, more expensive tax bracket.

—By 1984, anyone looking forward to a retirement pension of $1,000 a month would need a monthly income of $3,818 to buy the equivalent in 1974 dollars.

—A $10,000 life insurance policy would, by 1984, provide just $3,191 in terms of 1974 dollars. A $25,000 policy would provide $7,978 of protection.

Bad enough? It can be worse, say league officials. Some consumer items rise faster than others. At present rates of increase it observes these prices 10 years from now:

—A $20 bag of groceries — $80.91.

—A $2.50 plate lunch — $8.79. (And don't forget the tip.)

—A 15-cent newspaper — 62 cents.

Beer drinkers will recognize how hideous the situation could become by calculating the 1984 price of a six-pack — around $3.30 — if present trends continue.

Urge voluntary coal conservation

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A state energy official has called upon Ohioans for voluntary conservation measures to extend the state's coal supply in the face of a nationwide coal miners' walkout.

David C. Sweet, chairman of the state Energy Emergency Commission, said governmental agencies have stockpiled 95 to 100 days' supply of coal and enough to meet residential needs for 35 to 40 days.

"Ohio is in good shape for a strike up to 30 days, but if it extends beyond that..." mandatory control plans could go into effect, Sweet said Tuesday.

He predicted blackouts and growing unemployment lines if the strike lasts more than one month. Sweet said 356,000 Ohioans are employed in coal-using and allied industries. The major coal burning industry, steel, would be severly affected by a strike of more than two weeks, and "in 30 days steel production could be cut back completely."

The commission's contingency plans in the event of an energy crisis call for rolling outages for industrial and residential sections.

Rolling outages are temporary, scheduled power outages aimed at distributing the inconvenience fairly. But Sweet said the strike would have to last past Christmas for such actions to be necessary.

Officials of United Mine Workers District 6 in Bellaire have predicted the walkout would last two or three weeks. Some 12,000 miners in the district joined the walkout at midnight Monday. The district includes Ohio and the West Virginia panhandle.

State Sen. Michael J. Maloney, R-Cincinnati, vice chairman of the commission, joined in Sweet's call for public conservation of electricity and other forms of energy.

Maloney said as a commission member he would not hesitate to call an energy crisis if conditions warranted.

The commission has the power to declare an energy crisis in Ohio which would permit it to adopt rules and regulations that would remain in effect for 30 days.

In the meantime, the declaration would trigger an emergency session of the legislature which could extend, modify, or rescind commission actions.

Man battles with 6 thieves

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The odds were six to one, but Paul McKenzie managed to get off a few punches before six thieves who broke into his apartment made off with stereo equipment, a clock radio and about $30 in cash.

McKenzie told police the burglars broke in late Monday night and knocked him to the floor. But the 22-year-old Columbus man came up swinging.

One thief went flying down a stairwell from the second story apartment and another almost went off the balcony. A third finally felled McKenzie before the items were taken.

Arafat in spotlight

By FRANK N. HAWKINS JR.
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — In less than a decade, Yasir Arafat has blasted his way from desert caves into the international political spotlight.

As recently as 1965, the Palestinian guerrilla leader was directing operations against Israel from mountain hideouts overlooking the Jordan Valley.

His guerrilla group, Al Fatah, or Conquest, had only 100 members. Arafat was hunted not only by the Israelis but also by Arab leaders who saw him as a threat to their stability and security.

Thanks to Israel's humiliating defeat of the Egyptian, Syrian and Jordanian armies in 1967, Arafat and his guerrillas gained new prestige and massive backing throughout the Arab world. Al Fatah's membership swelled to 15,000, and the Arab governments have had to swallow their resentment and adopt him as a hero.

Now the 45-year-old Arafat's dark glasses, straggly beard and black-and-white checked kafiyeh, a traditional Arab headdress, are familiar in the highest Arab councils.

He regards his trip to the United Nations as his "boldest commando operation ever," the masterpiece of his career so far.

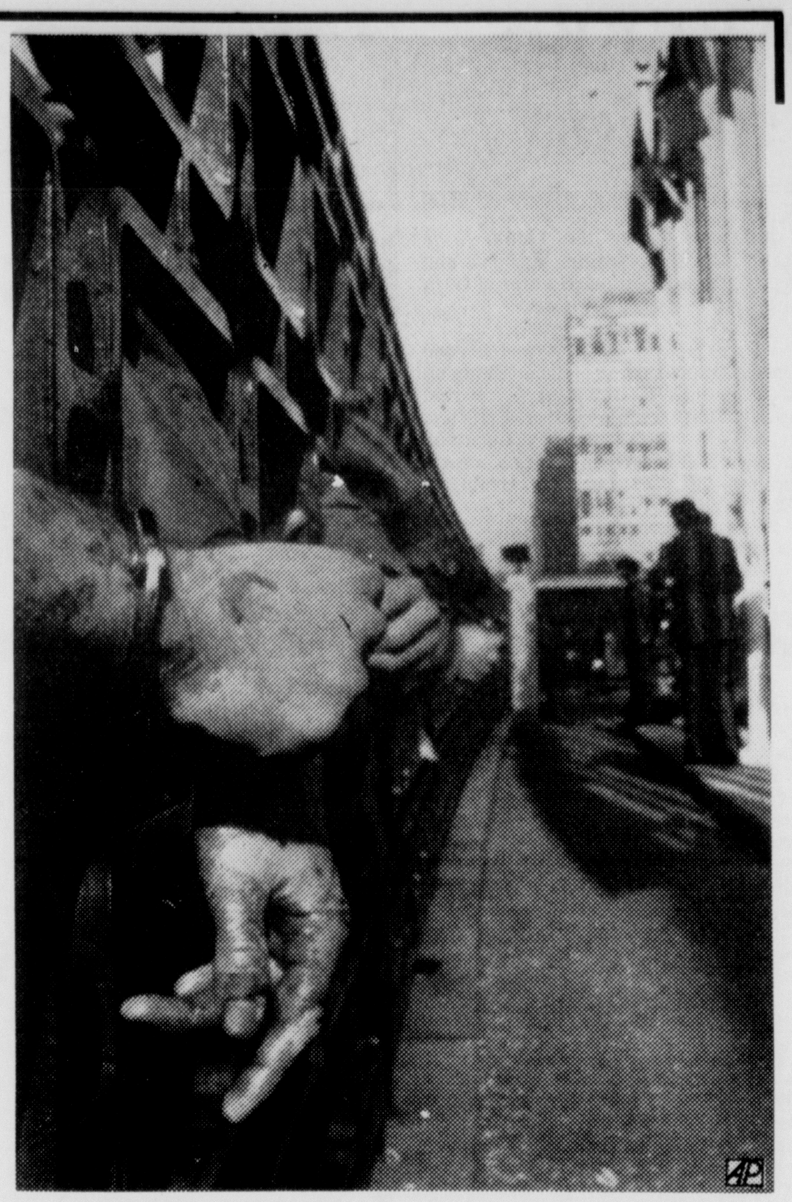
Born in Jerusalem in 1929, Arafat is believed to have been raised near the Wailing Wall in the Arab sector of the city. In his late teens he carried arms and ammunition to his father and elder brother fighting against the Jews in the 1947-48 Palestine War following the proclamation of the state of Israel.

The family moved to Gaza in 1948 and Yasir went to Cairo University to study engineering. There he became chairman of the Palestinian Students Organization and later of the Palestinian Alumni Association in the Egyptian capital.

He was credited with organizing the first fedayeen commando groups in 1956 when guerrilla raids into Israel from neighboring Arab states began.

In 1969, with the Arab world still smarting from the 1967 defeat, Arafat took command of the Palestine Liberation Organization, welding a number of guerrilla groups together under a single political umbrella.

The guerrillas suffered a serious setback in 1970 when King Hussein's Bedouin army threw them out of Jordan in a bloody civil war.



ANTI-ARAFAT DEMONSTRATION — Their hands covered with animal blood, members of the Jewish organization "Betar" handcuffed themselves to the main gate at the United Nations in New York to protest the anticipated arrival of Yasir Arafat, chief of the Palestine Liberation Organization. Arafat was scheduled to speak at the U.N. debate on the future of Palestine.

Bus strike now over

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Transit Authority of Northern Kentucky (TANK) buses resumed service today and wage negotiations resumed as a three-day walkout ended.

The more than 175 drivers and mechanics walked out Sunday when their old contract expired. The strike had not been sanctioned by the Amalgamated Transit Workers Union.

TANK serves three northern Kentucky counties — Campbell, Kenton and Boone — and connects with the Queen City Metro system in Cincinnati.

The publicly-owned transit firm carries 16,000 riders daily.

Members of Local 628 twice rejected negotiated settlements before walking out.

The workers are demanding the same age and fringe package received by Queen City Metro workers in Cincinnati, which totals $5.01 per hour.

State senate turns down nomination

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State senators refused Tuesday to confirm the appointment by Democratic Gov. John J. Gilligan of the same man to separate terms in two state government entities.

The vote was 10-19 against the appointment of John W. Kessler of Columbus as a member of the Ohio Building Authority. By a vote of 9-20, senators disallowed Kessler's appointment as a trustee of Ohio State University.

Kessler, a Republican, was identified as a contributor to Gilligan's unsuccessful re-election campaign.

But Sen. Michael J. Maloney, R-7 Cincinnati and others of both parties, also said they objected to Kessler being named to two jobs.

The Senate, at the legislature's one day session, confirmed these appointments by Gilligan:

Oliver Ocasek, Akron, Marigene Valiquette, Toledo, both Democrats, to the Ohio Residential Facilities Commission.

The Senate confirmed these appointments by the secretary of state:

Charles E. Shanklin, Republican, Milford Center; Barbara Rodemeyer, Republican, Canton; Daniel O'Laughlin, Democrat, Cleveland, and Alexander Prisley, Athens, as members of the newly created Ohio Elections Commission.

Start UC bargaining

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — University policy as well as economic issues looms as a point of contention as the American Association of University Professors assumes bargaining rights for 1,450 faculty members at the University of Cincinnati.

The AAUP won the right to represent the faculty by a vote of 673-583 in balloting last week. Results were announced Tuesday.

UC President Warren G. Bennis said he would recommend to the board of directors formally name the AAUP as bargaining agent when the board meets Dec. 3.

Bennis warned however, that "One issue that must now be faced is the role of students under collective bargaining.

"The board and the administration have affirmed that the student stake in university governance should not diminish as a result of bargaining," he said.

Rain aids winter wheat outlook

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rain has helped improve prospects for the 1975 winter wheat harvest, still eight months away, according to a weekly weather report by the Agriculture Department.

Although the report did not make any long-range predictions, it said widespread rains last week helped recently planted winter wheat to a good start in much of the eastern half of the country and in the Pacific Northwest.

In Oklahoma and Texas, recent heavy downpours in some sections have delayed field work, but have helped build up soil moisture reserves in many areas. The report said, however, wheat farmers in parts of the northern Plains were still plagued by a lack of moisture as of Nov. 10.

The Department will issue its first official appraisal of 1975 winter wheat prospects on Dec. 23. By then officials hope to have a good idea on how much acreage farmers planted this fall as well as an estimate on next summer's winter wheat harvest.

In another report Tuesday, USDA said farmers can expect currently high wheat prices to hang on through mid-1975. The average farm price of wheat nationally on Oct. 15 was $4.85 per bushel, up 20 per cent from last July.

"Worsening crop situations in major exporting countries and slow-paced marketings by U.S. farmers have been the primary reasons for recent strength in prices," the department's Outlook and Situation Board said. "With heavy exports expected the remainder of the season, wheat prices are expected to continue strong for the balance of the 1974-75 crop year."

Another reason for the high price outlook at least through mid-1975 was the decline of this year's harvest from early indications.

The report Tuesday described the 1974 harvest as "a record crop of only modest proportions" because of weather and other problems. Output was about 1.78 billion bushels. Although up four per cent from the previous record in 1973, production was far below the 2.2 billion bushels USDA had counted on last spring.

Further, the reserve of oldcrop wheat last July 1 was only 249 million bushels, the lowest since 1948, and well below the 439 million bushels on hand at mid-1973 and 863 million bushels on July 1, 1972.

Thus, with the 1974 harvest, about 2.03 billion bushels of wheat will be on hand to meet all requirements through mid-1975. That is down 6 per cent from the supply last season.

Department experts think exports and domestic requirements may total about 1.76 billion bushels more or less in the year to end next June 30.

If correct that will mean the wheat reserve then will be changed little from the low level of last summer.

Slate appeal on women's rights bid

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A member of the Governor's Task Force on Credit for Women said the group is prepared to appeal to the Ohio Legislature if Gov. John J. Gilligan does not take action on its recommendations soon.

Cincinnati Councilwoman Bobbie Sterne said Tuesday the 21-member group still has not received any comment from the governor on its report to him.

The group reported that women were being denied credit on an equal basis with men and made recommendations to correct the situation.

"We realize things must be a little upset now because of the election," Mrs. Sterne said. "What we are hoping is that there will be a lot of interest in our proposal and the public climate will be favorable.

"That way, we hope the recommendations will not become a political issue."

If the governor fails to act, she said, the task force will seek to initiate its recommendations by legislation.

"We would probably get one of the women legislators to introduce a bill. We drafted a model bill along with our recommendations," Mrs. Sterne said.

The task force recommended that the Consumer Protection Division of the Department of Commerce be authorized to continue to accept credit discrimination complaints pending the enactment of legislation.

Young restaurant proprietors eye old friendly atmosphere

The Washington Inn restaurant is bringing back Lawrence Tipton's homemade pecan rolls to Washington C.H.

The restaurant, once famous for its warm and tasty pecan rolls, is now under new management, which plans to recapture that "old, friendly homemade atmosphere."

DAN MAZZA, 34, of Circleville, and Richard Hooks, 30, of Washington C.H., have leased the restaurant and hotel from the Weade-Miller Real Estate firm and have employed the former chef, Larry Tipton, who has not worked at the restaurant for eight years, to continue the tradition of baking hot, fresh pecan rolls for early morning towngoers.

Also included at the restaurant will be a featured, "happy hour" daily from 4 until 6 p.m., according to Mazza, who said the after-work special was designed with the businessman in mind.

Hooks said they are hoping to eventually purchased the restaurant in full and add it to their own chain of two other restaurants — Forrest Restaurant in Circleville, and John's Place in Williamsport, under the Homa Corporation.

The young men recalled how they became restaurant proprietors in Washington C.H.

Both have been engaged in the restaurant business for over 10 years and were at one time employed by the same Ranch House Restaurant chain in Louisville, Ky.

Mazza started working when he was 16 for a dairy store chain. He became an assistant manager after high school, then left to become associated with a fast-food restaurant chain in Kentucky.

Hooks started with the Mobile Dairy Bar in Erie, Pa., went to Miami, Fla., and worked with the Quickie Food Stores chain, before heading north to Kentucky.

Eight years ago, the two met while working for the same Ranch House Restaurant chain in Louisville, Ky. Both had become managers of three restaurants each by that time and had cooperated in their businesses.

Although they both went separate ways with Mazza owning his own business in Kentucky and Hooks moving to Michigan and later Ohio, they maintained their friendship by keeping in touch.

Hooks started the Forrest Restaurant in Circleville and obtained John's Place in Williamsport. The two discussed the possibilities of a partnership and decided to combine their talents. Mazza sold his Louisville business, packed his belongings and moved to Circleville, where they formed the partnership.

JUST RECENTLY, they heard the local restaurant was available and decided to invest their capital and expand their restaurant ventures. Both men are married.

They now intend to revamp The Washington Inn with a "touch of flair" and a lot of the "good old days" aura.

The restaurant plans to have three specials daily plus a full dinner menu, featuring a 32-ounce T-bone steak and full line of seafood dishes. Breakfast specials will include the traditional homemade biscuits and gravy.

The restaurant will cater but only to private parties, said the new proprietors. They said the restaurant is equipped with two large banquet rooms — one which seats 75 people and the other with a seating capacity of 200.

6 bills approved in skeleton meet

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Sponsors negotiated out of House and Senate Rules Committees and secured passage Tuesday of six bills and one resolution that had been left pending when the lawmakers ended regular working sessions in July.

The actions came as the legislators finally worked out a bipartisan agreement on a long-awaited housing bill—the main reason leaders called the unusual one day working session.

Both houses adjourned until Dec. 10 at which time the 110th General Assembly will take final adjournment, making way for the new legislature which convenes Jan. 6.

One of the bills upgrades requirements for real estate salesmen and brokers. It was an aftermath to reports that former Gov. James A. Rhodes and several others, including Democrats, had gotten real estate licenses without any record of them taking full examinations.

The bill, among other things, would add one industry and one public member to the three-member all-industry Real Estate Commission.

It would create a Division of Real Estate in the Department of Commerce, with a superintendent, to carry out commission policies.

The commission and the superintendent would both have investigative powers provided by law.

Also passed was a labor-backed bill that would allow unions to bargain with intrastate employers about matters federal courts have said they can if the employer is engaged in interstate commerce.

Other measures reported out and approved will:

—Request the Utilities Commission to allow utilities to consider charitable contributions when figuring rate hikes before the commission, a policy they always followed until a recent PUCO regulation forbade it.

—Provide increased retirement benefits for sheriffs and their deputies and permit persons who hold those posts before Jan. 1 to choose which retirement system they want in — public employes or state highway patrol.

—Allow embalmers to remove the eyes from the body of a person who authorized it for transplant or research.

—Extend the deadline for the filing of financial reports by public institutions and taxing districts but provide a penalty of up to $750 if they don't do it within 90 days after the end of the fiscal year.

The proposal regarding the charitable expense deductions of utilities came in the form of a concurrent resolution and does not have the binding effect of law.

Spiraling demands for electric eyed

The increased use of electricity and some problems the Dayton Power and Light Co. is encountering in attempting to keep pace with skyrocketing demands were explained to members of the Washington C. H. Rotary Club at the regular weekly luncheon meeting Tuesday in the Country Club.

Jerry Morgan, of the Dayton Power and Light Co. public relations department, said that in 1963 the average residential customers used 400 kilowatts of electricity per month. That figure jumped to an average of 700 kilowatts per month in 1973, and Morgan said by 1983 it is estimated that the average customer will be using 1,200 per month.

In pointing out that those figures did not include business or industrial use, Morgan said the rate of growth of electricity use is doubling in a 10-year period.

With increased demands, the utility company has experienced production capacity problems, and the cost of constructing new facilities has created additional troubles because of high interest rates and governmental restrictions.

ONE ROTARIAN questioned Morgan about the use of atomic energy versus coal. The DP&L representative said that most of the company's plants use coal because it is the most abundant energy source in the United States. He said it has been estimated that there is a 2,000-year supply of coal in the U.S.

The continuing arguments between power companies and environmentalists was also discussed by Morgan. He said the Dayton Power and Light Co. is anti-environment and that the company is making tremendous investments for the protection of the environment. But, he said the company is appealing for reasonable propositions with environmental agencies and cited as an example the requirement for installing new sulphur removal systems in all generating plants by next year. He said technology has proven that the sulphur removal systems are not feasible.

To support his address to Rotarians, Morgan was equipped with a color film entitled, "What Time is the Power on Today?"which was produced in an attempt to explain through a number of dramatic instances what could happen if there was a serious energy pinch.

The meeting was conducted by club president Paul Crosby and the program was arranged by George Winkle.

Visiting Rotarians were Jerry Ardrey, Max Whiteside and Pete Tullis, all of London, Dr. Walter Felson and Robert Head, both of Greenfield, and Robert McNeely, of Mount Sterling. Student guests were Bill Schaefer, of Miami Trace High School, and David Garringer, of Washington Senior High School.

Judge reimposes fine in junk car incident

A Milledgeville man who received a suspended sentence in September for harboring junk vehicles on his property appeared in Municipal Court Tuesday and had the fine reimposed.

William Jackson, Milledgeville, had been found guilty of violating a village ordinance forbidding the keeping of unsightly junk on residential property. He was fined $50 by the judge at that time, but the fine was suspended on the condition that the mess be cleared away.

Acting Municipal Judge Omar Schwart reimposed the fine when a hearing revealed that Jackson had failed to dispose of the vehicle. He was found in violation of the conditions for the suspension of the fine and was ordered to pay the $50.

Carl E. Aber, 58, of 604 Clinton Ave., was fined $25 on a charge of intoxication filed by city police.

Charges against three other persons were dismissed at the request of the prosecuting witness.

A bad check charge filed against James W. Glass, 47, Jeffersonville, by Buckeye Mart was dismissed.

A charge of assault filed on a private warrant against Randy Nichols, 23, of 1004 Delaware St., was dismissed, as was a charge of intoxication filed against Edward A. Kuntz, 39, of 738 Eastern Ave.

Muny Court jury eyes shoplifting testimony

A New Holland woman charged with shoplifting at Buckeye Mart is facing a jury in Municipal Court which will determine her guilty or innocence.

The trial opened Wednesday morning with the selection of juors and opening statements by the attorneys, city solicitor Gary Smith and defense counselor Robert Simpson.

Mrs. Carolyn Robinson, New Holland, was stopped by a security guard at the Buckeye Mart store Aug. 2 after the guard claimed she and her daughter had shoplifted nine items of baby clothing valued at just over $20.

Mrs. Flora White, employed as a guard by the discount department store, testified that she saw the daughter placing items in her mother's purse. She further testified that they were stopped outside the store and asked to return to the store office.

According to Mrs. White, the items of clothing were then found in Mrs. Robinson's purse, and the defendant signed a statement saying that she had taken the clothing. Mrs. White testified that she told Mrs. Robinson she did not have to say or sign anything.

Simpson contested the offering of the statement or clothing into evidence, saying that the defendant had been detained without being told that she would be arrested and that she was placed under pressure to make the signed statement.

Judge Omar Schwart did not immediately rule on the admissibility of the evidence. He said he would delay any ruling until further testimony as to the means used to obtain the statement had been brought to the court's attention.

Simpson was expected to call upon Mrs. Robinson and her daughter to testify for the defense.

Shoplifting charges against the daughter are presently pending in Juvenile Court.

Ulasewicz slates testimony on handling of hush money

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former New York police detective Anthony Ulasewicz, next on the witness stand in the Watergate cover-up trial, is expected to describe his role in funneling alleged hush money to the original Watergate defendants.

Ulasewicz, whose wry humor broke up the Senate Watergate Committee hearings in the summer of 1973, has said previously that he acted as conduit between Herbert W. Kalmbach, who raised the cash, and the defendants and their attorneys.

Kalmbach was grilled intensely by U.S. District Court John J. Sirica, who defended his interrogation by citing praise he received from an appeals court last week for his work in the first Watergate trial.

After dismissing the jury for the day, Sirica turned to Kalmbach, formerly Richard M. Nixon's personal lawyer, and fired 20 questions at him in drumbeat fashion, skeptically challenging his contention that he believed the money went only for humanitarian purposes.

Kalmbach had testified that not until September 1972 did he decide to stop raising funds.

Kalmbach said that not until Ulasewicz warned him that the payments were not "kosher" did he believe there was anything improper.

In pressing Kalmbach, Sirica focused on two lawyers who were asked by Nixon re-election committee officials to defend the original defendants.

Sirica asked Kalmbach if the two men, Douglas Caddy and Paul O'Brien, had not refused one of the first parcels of cash gathered by Kalmbach.

Kalmbach answered that because he did not deal directly with either Caddy or O'Brien, he believed "there was a misunderstanding between these attorneys and whoever it was that was talking to them."

Nixon blood pressure up

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon is experiencing dramatic blood pressure increases, but his doctor says he expects him to be released from the hospital late this week.

The blood pressure jump to an abnormally high of 180 over 95 was noticed Monday when Nixon, 61, was talking with a visitor. Dr. John C. Lungren, Nixon's personal doctor, said the former president's blood pressure is normally about 120 over 70 or 80.

Nixon's only physical activity is believed to be walks in his top-floor room at Memorial Hospital Medical Center, where he is recuperating from surgery to remove a blood clot from his left leg and subsequent post operative shock. He also has a slight case of pneumonia.

The Union Jack was Canada's official flag from 1763 to 1965.

Following hypnosis demonstration

Lions Club members leave meet in utter amazement

Most members of the Washington C.H. Lions Club departed from their regular semi-monthly meeting at the country Club Tuesday night in complete wonderment.

The question "Did you believe in that?" was overheard frequently at the conclusion of the meeting as the Lions Club members discussed among themselves a fascinating program on the subject of hypnosis which was presented by Dr. Charles M. Pfersick, a Washington C.H. dentist and Lions Club member.

"The word hypnosis scares a lot of people, but it's actually the power of suggestion and how well you accept suggestions," Dr. Pfersick explained at the beginning of one of the most interesting programs ever presented at a Lions Club meeting.

"ANYONE COULD learn to be a hypnotist. Learning to suggest well is the key to becoming a hypnotist," Dr. Pfersick said. "Everyone in this room can learn to be hypnotized if you'll just learn to relax enough to let someone be a key to unlock these qualities that we just don't use."

Dr. Pfersick, a graduate of Ohio State University, was assisted in actual hypnotic demonstrations during the program by three sophomore dental students from Ohio State University.

Before actually hypnotizing the students to illustrate his presentation, Dr. Pfersick said one can hypnotize a person in any position, but he preferred relaxed positions. He also said he had worked with the students earlier and had received their approval for demonstrations Tuesday night and previously., One of the demonstrations used by Dr. Pfersick was to regress two of the subjects back to their earlier lives. He took them back to elementary school where Jesse Persinger served as a teacher and had one of the dental students write his name and draw pictures on a blackboard as a first grader, third grader and sixth grader.

When Dr. Pfersick regressed dental student Mrs. Phil Howard to elementary school, he did not tell the Lions Club members that she was a former resident of Ecuador in South America and did not learn the English language until she was 14 years old. So, when teacher Richard Patton asked her to write her name and draw pictures on the blackboard she did not understand. Club member Donald Bennett, who speaks some Spanish, was summoned from the audience and the demonstration continued in the foreign language.

Another demonstration employed by Dr. Pfersick was to hypnotize one of the students and tell him he would be located in a garden, would hear a church bell ring twice and later be stung by a bumble bee. The student walked into the imaginary garden at one end of the Country Club, explained to Dr. Pfersick the types and colors of flowers that were planted there, told him he heard a church bell ring twice and later appeared to be in severe pain as he was stung on the back of his right hand by the imaginary bee.

DR. PFERSICK, who welcomed suggestions from the 84 Lions Club members present throughout the actual demonstrations, emphasized that he does not believe in suggesting physical feats to subjects such as sticking hat pins through their arms and other similar demonstrations shown on television.

During the regular business meeting conducted by club president Ralph Cook, three new members were introduced. They were Pat Riley, 644 Warren Ave., of American Aggregates, Inc.; John Gall, 1102 Genevieve Drive, a Nationwide Insurance Co. agent here, and Don Anderson, U.S. 62-S, of Mac Tools, Inc.

Richard Coates, the club's first vice president, announced that a zone Lions Club bowling tournament will be held Jan. 12 at Bowland Lanes in Washington C.H. Teams from seven area Lions Clubs will be participating in the event.

Guests for the meeting were Richard Snyder with Dr. Pfersick, Urcel Knedler with Robert Yates and William Wood with Carmen Frogale.

Rookie coach heads selections

By GEORGE STRODE
AP Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Jerry Harris has been rewarded for leading Lima Senior High School to its second best football record in its 20-year history.

Harris, in his rookie campaign, guided the Spartans to a 7-1-1 record and was selected The Associated Press' Ohio Northwestern District Class AAA Coach of the Year.

An area panel of sports writers and broadcasters named quarterback Dick Albaugh of Whitehouse Anthony Wayne as the Northwestern Class AAA Back of the Year and Toledo DeVilbiss defensive end Farley Bell the area Class AAA Lineman of the Year.

Albaugh, a 6-foot-2, 190-pound senior, passed for 49 career touchdowns, completing 213 of 391 passes for 2,786 yards. He was 77 of 135 for 1,042 yards and 21 touchdowns in 1974.

Farley, 6-5 and 215 pounds, collected 195 tackles, 22 quarterback sacks, eight fumble recoveries and two pass interceptions in three seasons.

In Class AA, Bob Hart of playoff-bound Norwalk, 9-1-0, was the top coach, Fostoria running back Kovin Chapman the No. 1 back and Oak Harbor linebacker Mike Sprouse the top lineman.

In Class A, Steve Mays of 8-1 Findlay Liberty Benton was the Coach of the Year, Fremont St. Joseph's Joe Guyer the Back of the Year and Cory-Rawson linebacker Matt Huffman the Lineman of the Year.

Commissioner reprimands Hayes

CHICAGO (AP) — Woody Hayes, Ohio State's controversial Big Ten football coaching dean, has become the first victim of the conference's new Sportsmanlike Conduct Code.

Hayes, for his tirade following his top-ranked Buckeyes' 16-13 upset at Michigan State, was publicly reprimanded Tuesday by Conference Commissioner Wayne Duke and warned a one-game suspension will follow any repetition of his "unsportsmanlike conduct."

Hayes berated game officials and Michigan State tactics after Ohio State failed to beat the clock with a last-second touchdown try which caused the East Lansing, Mich., contest to end in confusion and bedlam.

Duke's ruling was based on a new code approved by the Conference last summer "to curtail the undesirable trends which have earmarked all of intercollegiate athletics."

Hayes, in his 24th Buckeye season, was furious after Ohio State's Brian Baschnagel scooped up a fumbled snap and darted into the end zone only to have the apparent winning touchdown cancelled because time ran out.

Hayes blasted the officials for not calling a timeout when a big pileup was slow untangling after the preceding play. Not only were Michigan State players stalling in getting back on defense, Hayes charged, but they also grabbed and held Ohio State players to prevent their lining up for the crucial last play.

"The officials were remiss," Hayes said. "You never have any explanation from them. They are not to be found any place." The official result was not announced until a lengthy post-game conference between Duke and the officials.

Duke said Hayes had "expressed publicly" his support of the new code directed against "any person who publicly is unduly critical of any game official, conference personnel, another member institution or its personnel."

Duke said he would have to study the new code further to determine if it applied only to the current season or future seasons as far as the second offense and a one-game suspension is concerned.

Hayes, whose Buckeyes dropped to fourth place in The Associated Press poll, sends his club against Iowa next Saturday at Iowa City, and then against arch-rival Michigan at Columbus, Ohio, for a Nov. 23 regular season finale.

The outspoken Hayes was short and sassy in his first public comment after being notified by Duke of his censure.

In a telephone report to Iowa coach Bob Commings' weekly press luncheon, Hayes announced: "This is Coach Hayes and I have a statement; we'll be there Saturday." Then he hung up.

Hayes long has worn his feelings on his shirtsleeves, and once before was rebuked by Duke. That was in Duke's first year as commissioner in 1971, when Hayes tore up sideline markers in a wild protest against failure of officials to call pass interference against Michigan.

In 1958, Woody astounded and angered then commissioner Kenneth (Tug) Wilson when he banned a Wilson-led band of Big Ten sportswriters from attending a preseason Buckeye practice session.

Angry Buckeyes picked to destroy Hawkeyes

HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Woody Hayes, gracious as ever, was the telephone guest at Iowa's weekly Tuesday press luncheon hosted by Coach Bob Commings.

The Ohio State coach was brief ... and to the point.

"This is Coach Hayes and I have a statement — we'll be there Saturday."

Click!

Thus, Commings got the message — as if he didn't already know it — that Hayes still was fuming over Saturday's controversial 16-13 loss to Michigan State.

"I wish Michigan State hadn't beaten them," Commings said. "The Buckeyes have to do a job on us this week for their game with Michigan to mean anything. We've got to be prepared to meet a very angry football team."

And a very angry coach. Ohio State ... 42-7.

Last week's score was 47 right — including the Upset Special — Georgia over Florida — 18 wrong and one tie for .723. For the season, the scoreboard reads 581-162-15—.721.

Upset Special of the Week ... Indiana 21, Michigan State 20. Spartans have nowhere to go but down after that thriller with Ohio State.

Second Upset Special ... Cincinnati 14, Miami of Ohio 10: Nation's second longest unbeaten streak comes to an end at 21 games.

Oklahoma 34, Kansas 7: Sooners want to hold that No. 1 ranking, but they better not be looking ahead to Nebraska.

Notre Dame 27, Pitt 14: Irish remember how Tony Dorsett ran wild against them last year.

Alabama 35, Miami, Fla. 0: Crimson Tide hasn't allowed a touchdown in three games.

Michigan 28, Purdue 7: Bring on Ohio State!

Nebraska 41, Kansas State 6: Bring on Oklahoma!

Auburn 17, Georgia 14: Bring on Alabama!

Southern California 42, Washington 14: Trojans pick up where Cal left off.

Florida 21, Kentucky 14: If Sonny Collins were available it might have a different ending.

Texas A&M 24, Rice 10: Last week's loss to SMU and last year's loss to Rice were bad Aggie jokes.

Maryland 30, Duke 15: Duke finds Maryland a pearl in the Oyster Bowl.

Houston 38, Memphis State 7: Bubba McGallion has solved the Cougars' quarterback woes.

Arizona State 35, North Carolina State 31: Defense? What's that?

Oklahoma State 24, Colorado 17: Cowboys fiesta en route to the Fiesta Bowl.

California 35, Washington State 21: How about matching Cal and Oklahoma in the Probation Bowl?

Baylor 24, Texas Tech 21: Bear fever has got us, too.

Tangerine Bowl opponents eyed

OXFORD, Ohio (AP) — Miami of Ohio University Athletic Director Dick Shrider said he hopes the University of Georgia is picked as his team's opponent in the Tangerine Bowl.

Miami, selected as MidAmerican Conference Champion, hopes to repeat its bowl victory Dec. 21.

Prospective opponents have been narrowed to four, he said — Georgia, Baylor, Clemson and Tulsa.

Ken Anderson nearing NFL passing record

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Bengals quarterback Ken Anderson, whose near-flawless passing performance Sunday erased two National Football League records, may be flirting with one of the oldest marks in the book.

Anderson's pinpoint accuracy—37 completions in his last 43 attempts—has boosted his season percentage to a sizzling 67.4. The all-time NFL record is 70.3, set in 1945 by legendary passing wizard Sammy Baugh of the Washington Redskins.

Virtually unknown until last year when he claimed the starting job from veteran Virgil Carter, Anderson has emerged as one of the NFL's biggest surprises of 1974.

He's taken over the NFL passing lead and pushed the Bengals into the League Lead in total offense.

The fourth-year pro from Augustana (Ill.) College Sunday broke the all-time NFL consecutive completion record held by Joe Namath and Len Dawson when he fashioned a streak of 16 over two games. The former record was 15.

He finished the game with 20 of 22 to shatter the all-time efficiency mark previously held by Oakland's Ken Stabler, who completed 25 of 29 against lowly Baltimore last year. Anderson's feat came against Pittsburgh, the NFL's defensive leader.

Baugh's 29-year-old record was achieved by connecting on 128 of 182 passes. Anderson, with five games remaining, has already attempted 40 more aerials than Baugh, completing 147 of 218.

The last player to complete more than 64 per cent of his passes was Otto Graham of Cleveland in 1953. He connected on 167 of 258 for a 64.7 percentage.

Anderson, who shies away from taking credit for his passing accomplishments, points to his fine group of receivers as the chief reason for his sudden success.

And he scrutinizes films in the off-season to prevent interceptions. "I'd rather throw the ball away or run with it than have it intercepted," said the 25-year-old native of Batavia, Ill.

"Really, statistics don't mean anything to me. Winning does. You could complete only four passes in a game, and if they were the right four, I'd be happy. You just do what you have to do to win," he said.

Anderson was a third-round draft choice in 1971. "He should have been a first round in anyone's book," says Bengals offensive coach Jack Donaldson, who coached Joe Namath for four years.

Steve Garvey named NL's most valuable

By The Associated Press

San Diego's Travis Grant says he should be a good shooter. And the man his coach says "is a machine gun" proved it with a 30-point performance against Memphis.

Grant pumped in 14 of 18 shots from the field Tuesday night to pace the San Diego Q's to a 113-104 American Basketball Association victory over the Memphis Sounds. In the only other ABA game on tap, San Antonio defeated Virginia 109-92.

Described as "a machine gun" by Q's coach Alex Groza, Grant finished with 30 points.

With the score tied at 55-55 at the half, Grant came out firing in the third quarter. He tallied 10 points as San Diego surged to an 82-79 advantage going into the final period, maintaining its lead the rest of the way.

The game's scoring honors went to Memphis' George Carter with 32.

Donnie Freeman and Coby Dietrick of San Antonio and Barry Parkhill of Virginia weren't thinking about scoring as their game neared the halfway mark. They proved it by getting ejected.

With just 38 seconds remaining in the first half, the Spurs and Squires switched from basketball to fisticuffs. San Antonio's Freeman and Dietrick and Virginia's Parkhill were ejected from the game, leading to another uproar.

Browns sellout

CLEVELAND (AP) — It took the Cleveland Browns more than half the season, but they've finally come up with a sellout crowd for a home game.

The Browns take on the old rival Pittsburgh Steelers and it was last year for the same matchup that Cleveland Stadium had all its 79,282 tickets sold prior to game time.

Goals and striving

By ANDY MERRITT

Man seldom quickly acknowledges success, but is quick to point out failure. Parents, teachers, and friends all are sure to mention expectation of success. Years of tradition state each must be successful in life and walk the beaten path on the way to wealth. Men with ideas searching for new horizons are often deemed failures. Society has set its standards for success.

Fixing goals and establishing morals has given the world a level that is acceptable. All look about to take these standards and judge success. This tends to force men to conform to the system, to seek goals that are not their own. This is wrong. Each man is distinctly different. He has various abilities, separate virtues and emotions. No man reasons the same as another. There is a different twist in thinking, no matter how many similarities are apparent.

Each man has a limit. Man should seek what is right for him, and not others. He must set his own goals, provide his own morals. He must carry the torch so others can see; he should not walk by the light of someone else.

All men must realize that no matter how dim the light of success is, it is brighter than the gloom of failure. Heed not that other's flames are brighter, but take care to keep your own burning, so it can help light others.

Nine Hi-Y Club members prepare for conference

Nine members of the WSHS Hi-Y club and advisor, Mr. George Shoemaker, are preparing to attend the annual fall conference. They will leave Friday and will return Sunday.

The purpose of the conference is to allow clubs from Ohio and West Virginia to work together on problems that Hi-Y clubs frequently encounter. This year the clubs in attendance will experience a unique program based on the development of a club and master the fundamentals of organization in perfection. Hopefully, each club that attends will return to their respective schools and communities with ideas and methods of improving their individual club and their service of initiating Y.M.C.A. ideals.

The nine members attending will be Jim Smith, David Mustine, Doug Maddux, Tim O'Flynn, Rory Souther, Mike Pope, Mike Hughes, Hugh Patton and Kevin Blair.

Leadership fights set in Assembly

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — House Republicans in next year's 111th General Assembly have called a caucus for Monday to elect their leader, although most of the attention will be on the race for leadership among majority Democrats.

House Minority Leader Charles F. Kurfess, R-83 Perrysburg, is running again for the post. He could face some opposition, but is expected to be elected.

The real battles will be among the Democrats, who will control the House 59-40 and the Senate 21-12.

In the House, Rep. Vernal G. Riffe, D-89 New Boston, is reported to have the votes needed to oust his longtime friend and onetime roommate, House Speaker A. G. Lancione, D-99 Bellaire, for the top spot. Riffe is currently Lancione's assistant.

On the Senate side, current Senate Minority Leader Anthony O. Calabrese, D-22 Cleveland, will face opposition for the position of President Pro Tem (or majority leader) from his current assistant, Sen. Oliver Ocasek, D-27 Akron.

Ocasek aides claim their man has 14 votes, but Calabrese, who is the senior member of the body and, as a result, the man who will call the caucus, has said he will summon it "whenever I have the votes."

Calabrese is confident he will win.

Sen. Michael J. Maloney, current assistant to Senate Majority Leader Theodore M. Gray, R-3 Columbus, will seek the minority leadership in the new Senate.

Gray announced Monday night that he wouldn't go after the post.

For the future, she plans to attend the University of Purdue in order to major in natural resources.

Brian Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Cook, 1229 High St., also is an extremely active senior. Brian is involved in Hi-Y, Student Council, the Youth-in-Government program, class editor for the Sunburst and a member of National Honor Society. He was an alternate to Buckeye Boys State and attended the Ohio Drug and Alcohol convention held this past summer.

He hopes to attend either Miami University or Ohio Northern University where he will study to become an orthodonist. Brian's comment was, "My years in high school have been very worthwhile; most important was that I learned to become an individual."

Although the Stars and Stripes originated in 1777, it was not until 146 years later that there was a serious attempt to establish a uniform code of etiquette for the U.S. flag.

Vet's assembly impressive

Members of the WSHS color guard opened the annual Veteran's Day assembly with the presentation of the colors. Flags included were the U.S. flag, the Ohio flag, the Navy flag, and the ROTC unit flag. The band, under the direction of Mr. Charles Shaffer, played a patriot medley by George M. Cohan which included "You're A Grand Old Flag" and "Yankee Doodle." As the flags were presented the student body was led in the pledge of allegiance. This was followed by a prayer for peace for all nations given by Mr. Eugene Ladrach, past 7th district commander.

David Mustine, student council president, introduced Mr. David A. Cropper, past department commander of Post 23. His speech included the basic idea that those who gave their lives in service for country did so for free belief, hope for tomorrow, and understanding. As a transition to the young people in the audience Mr. Cropper stated that "all are touched by war - every young person today realizes the tragedy of war." He also stated that these same young people hold the hope for the future for in them is such a strong belief in brotherhood, fellowman, and above all love.

Following the speech silence prevailed as taps were played in honor of those who have given so much.

Those participating in the program besides Mr. Cropper and Mr. Ladrach, were Mr. Henry Litz, commander of Post 25; Mr. Harold Dixon, county commander of Fayette County; Mr. Francis Morgan, past district commander; Mrs. Phil Ford, auxiliary president; and Mrs. Charles Williams, auxiliary secretary and unit Americanism chairman, past department Americanism chairman.

Winter driving tips

4-H roundup

By JACK SOMMERS
County 4-H Extension Agent

Ohio 4-H Auto Care and Safety Club members urge auto drivers to be prepared for winter driving conditions.

Duane Lau, Assistant State Leader, 4-H, and spokesman for the group, says owners should equip their car for the unexpected. Store the following items in a carton in the trunk of your car.

FIRST AID KIT: A check with the American Red Cross for a list of proper contents for the kit.

FIRE EXTINGUISHER: Buy an approved, adequate sized extinguisher. A CO2 or 2½ pound dry chemical extinguisher is recommended.

FLASHLIGHT: This item may come in handy for reading road maps, finding a key or house number, or for making repairs at night. Get one with a magnet so it can be placed on the side of the car, freeing both hands, while changing a flat tire at night.

TIRE INFLATOR: The pressurized can is easy to use and will help you get to the nearest service station for a tire change. There are times when it is unsafe to change a tire along the roadside, because of traffic conditions, weather, position of car, or time of day.

SPARE FUSES: Your service station or auto store attendant can tell you what type and how many fuses you will need. Locate the fuse box from your owner's manual or ask your service man to show you its location before going on the road. It can be a frustrating search on a rainy or snowy night when you have no lights.

FLARES: In case of an accident or car trouble on the road, particularly on a dark road at night, flares and-or emergency flashers are very helpful. These are available at most auto supply stores. Place flares 50 feet ahead and behind your car to alert on coming traffic of your predicament.

BATTERY JUMPER CABLES: This item comes in handy when you are stranded with a dead battery and another motorist comes to your aid.

TWO 4" x 4" WOOD BLOCKS: Make these long enough — about 12 inches — so they can be used to "chock" wheels when the car has to be raised with a jack. Chocked wheels prevent the car from rolling when using a bumper jack.

A DIME: Be sure you have a dime in the emergency box or some place in the cair in case you have to make an emergency phone call.

A DISPOSABLE WASHCLOTH: This is handy for cleaning hands after working on a tire change or other car repair job.

For additional information on items you need for car safety, contact your local 4-H Auto Care and Safety project members. If you are interested in helping start a 4-H Auto Care and Safety Club in your community, contact your local county Extension Agent, 4-H at 335-1150.

Wrong people get the 'red carpet'

LONDON (AP) — The British Airports Authority (a government agency) is worried that the wrong people are getting the red carpet treatment at London, Airport—at the taxpayers' expense.

It is investigating a case where one of the four VIP lounges was opened for the butler of a South American embassy who arrived with his ambassador's silver cutlerly. He got the full treatment, chauffeur-driven car from plane to lounge, preferential baggage handling and free refreshments.

Said a BAA official, "Sometimes, the people we are told to expect do not arrive, and others who do not really qualify come in their place. It could be embarrassing to point this out."

Food price freeze set

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—K Mart Food Stores' freeze of 400 grocery prices for 30 days became effective today, and a spokesman for the stores said he hoped it could be extended.

Coy Wright, eastern division manager for Allied Supermarkets, Inc., which operates the 11 K Mart stores, said the freeze applied to K Mart's own brands but not to meats, produce or nationally advertised major brands. Those were excluded because of rapidly rising wholesale prices, he said.

"Prices on some items included in the freeze may be reduced during this period," Wright added, "but we absolutely guarantee they will not go up."

Among the stores included are those in Lorain, Youngstown, Massillon, Akron, Canton and Eastlake.

The freeze included such K Mart items as frozen and bakery goods, household cleaners, canned goods and some general merchandise, Wright said.

Brown sued over money

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—An $8 million taxpayers' suit, claiming incompetency on the part of Ohio Atty. Gen. William Brown, has been filed over the handling of the Four Seasons Nursing Homes case.

Jack Walker of Columbus filed the suit Tuesday in Franklin County Common Pleas Court, seeking damages from Brown and three assistant attorneys general.

Walker says Brown was negligent and incompetent for failing to file a form which would have removed Ohio's claim for damages from a group of Four Seasons creditors whose cases were heard in Oklahoma courts.

Walker's suit contends failure to file the form cost the state $4 million in damages and interest.

Brown, who said earlier that the form was missed in an oversight, was unavailable for comment.

Former parolee freed of charge

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — James LeBoeuf is again free after a man who had charged him with making menacing threats elected not to prosecute in Hamilton County Municipal Court Tuesday.

LeBoeuf, who in 1972 was protected here from extradition to Michigan for jail escape, currently is on probation for conviction in October of receiving stolen goods.

A court here refused to send LeBoeuf back to Michigan after civic groups and his employers said he had led a model life for several years.

Michigan then placed him on parole. The parole was completed in 1973.

Toronto and Montreal were the first cities in Canada to use horse-drawn cars for public transport.

Opening lead - king of clubs.

South got to four spades in this interesting hand and West led the king of clubs.

Declarer ruffed and played the A-K of trumps, hoping to catch the queen. When the queen failed to drop, South played three rounds of hearts, discarding a diamond from dummy, and continued with another heart.

At this point, West made a poor play when he ruffed with the queen of trumps, declarer discarding another diamond from dummy. South later lost two diamond tricks and wound up making four.

Had West discarded on the fourth round of hearts, as he should have, South would surely have gone down one. When declarer plays a fifth heart, West again refuses to ruff and South is now at the end of his rope.

He leads a diamond, won by West, who plays the queen of trumps to hold declarer to nine tricks. South winds up losing a trump and three diamonds.

Oddly enough, declarer can make the contract by choosing a somewhat devious method of play. After cashing the A-K of trumps, he leads a heart to the jack and ruffs a club, leaving himself with only one trump, the jack.

He then cashes the A-K-Q of hearts, West discarding a club, and continues with his last heart. West can do no better than discard another club, whereupon declarer ruffs his heart winner in dummy with the eight, and plays still another club which he ruffs with the jack.

South now has ten tricks to show for his efforts—count them—and has succeeded in hornswoggling the opponents out of the contract, having started with four losers and finishing with three.

Cystic Tumor on the Wrist

I had a small growth of my wrist for years. I paid no attention to it because it didn't hurt. Now, it's larger and painful while I work at a drill press. I've been told that it could be removed, but I'm afraid it will affect the movement of my hand at work. Can you help?

Mr. J.C.O., La.

Dear Mr. O.:

Your real concern seems to be about your capacity to function after the operation.

The kind of growth that you describe is probably a noncancerous (benign) tumor of the wrist, known as a ganglion. This is a cystic tumor which lies close to the joints and tendons of the wrist.

It is sometimes called a "weeping sinew" because it contains a thick gelatinous fluid.

Surgical removal of a ganglion is not dangerous or incapacitating.

Is it true that American Indians never develop coronary heart disease?

Mr. T.L., Conn.

Dear Mr. L.:

A study of a large group of Apache Indians in Arizona revealed that although Indians do develop coronary heart disease the death rate seems to be two to three times lower than that of the general population of the United States.

Their total calorie intake is lower than the average American. Indians eat very little cheese, bacon, whole milk and eggs—foods particularly high in saturated fats.

This seems to substantiate the modern concept that high cholesterol foods play an important role in the greater frequency of coronary heart disease.

Two emergency bills on Council calendar

Two pieces of emergency legislation will be considered by members of Washington C.H. City Council at the regular semi-monthly meeting scheduled for 7:30 p.m. tonight in the City Office Building.

City Manager Dan Wolford said Council members will be considering an emergency ordinance authorizing the city of Washington C.H. to act as a subcontractor for Fayette County in the administration of a Title II grant from the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act for the period of Oct. 1 to June 30, 1975.

An emergency ordinance determining the best bid and authorizing the city manager to purchase three new 1975 model cruisers for the Washington C.H. Police Department will also be considered by the city's legislators, according to Wolford.

Two items also appear on the city manager's report.

They are reports on bids for salt to be used on city street during the winter months, new police cruisers and radio equipment. Wolford will also be seeking permission to purchase protective coats for members of the Washington C.H. Fire Department.

County Red Cross preparing for annual Yule gift shop

The Fayette County Red Cross chapter is once again assisting the Ross County chapter prepare for Christmas at the Chillicothe Veterans Administration Hospital.

It has often been said that it is better to give than to receive, and past years have shown that the veterans would rather give than receive. However, the opportunities for these men to give are very limited since they have little or no income.

Therefore, the Red Cross sponsors an annual Christmas gift shop where the men can obtain gifts without cost. An assorted stock of new merchandise is needed so that these veterans can enjoy the warmth of giving to their loved ones at Christmas.

In order to stock the free gift shop, the help of area residents is needed. Donations of gifts from this area should be delivered to the Korn Insurance office, W. Court St., or to any volunteer at the VA Hospital.

Fayette County volunteers are Mrs. Margaret Bryant, Mrs. Joyce Bryant, Mrs. Nadine Rost, Mrs. Ruth Hyer, Mrs. Florence Bethard, Mrs. Virginia Lutz, Mrs. Dorothy Pensyl and Mrs. Angie Osborne.

Past experience shows that of each 100 gifts given by the veterans 45 are for men, 40 for women, 10 for teenaged children, and five for youngsters.

A list of suggested gift items can be obtained by contacting any of the above volunteers or Mrs. Leonard Korn at the insurance office.

It takes from 30 to 40 gallons of sap to make one gallon of maple syrup.

County relieved from voted debt

Fayette County can boast a claim few other counties in Ohio or even the United States can make in a day of rising costs and indebtedness.

As of Nov. 1, Fayette County became free of any voted, bonded indebtedness since 1941 with the payment of the Fayette Memorial Hospital bond.

The bond for the original construction of Fayette Memorial hospital was issued in July, 1946, for $360,000 in bonds at an interest rate of one and one-fourth per cent!

A total of $125,000 in bonds were issued in December, 1951 at the rate of one and one-half per cent with the first addition to the hospital being built.

A second addition was built in May, 1964, requiring $450,000 of bonds at an interest rate of two and seven-eighths per cent.

This last bond was paid off Nov. 1, 1974, according to county auditor Mary Morris and the Fayette County Board of Commissioners, to relieve the county of any voted, bonded indebtedness.

IN OTHER business related by the commissioners Tuesday was the granting of fleet insurance for county vehicles to the Charles Sheridan Insurance Agency.

The commissioners set the dog license fees for 1975 at the same rate as in 1974, or $4 for dogs and $20 for kennels.

The commissioners met with the Fayette County Regional Planning Committee of which they are members, Tuesday night to review two applications. The planning committee considered a request for federal funding by the village of Bloomingburg for sewage treatment and disposal facilities, for a grant of $150,000. The committee approved this request and will send its recommendations to the regional planning clearing house in Columbus for action.

A second request for funding by the Community Action Commission for various projects in the county was partially approved by the planning committee. The committee endorsed funding for three of the six projects requested and will also send these recommendations and suggestions to the Columbus clearing house.

Government concedes recession

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration officials, while admitting that the nation is entering a recession, say there is little danger of a depression.

"We are not now in a recession, but new figures will probably indicate we are moving into a recession," Ron Nessen, President Ford's press secretary, said Tuesday.

He said economic statistics for November will show a continued erosion of the nation's economy, which has been declining since the first of the year.

But there is little danger of the recession growing into a depression, according to Edgar Fiedler, an assistant secretary of the Treasury for economic affairs.

"I would never rule out the absolute possibility of a more severe decline, but in my own mind, the possibility is very small," Fiedler said.

He said he is hopeful the recession can reach its bottom by mid-1975 with an economic upturn after that. But he acknowledged, "I have no basis for forecasting it."

Another administration economist, Sidney L. Jones, said the nation's unemployment rate could rise to 7 per cent without programs to help, such as Ford's proposed expanded public service employment program.

Congress is expected to enact an expanded program.

Nessen indicated that the worsening economic outlook may cause President Ford to change some parts of his economic program, including the 5 per cent income surtax on upper-middle and upper incomes.

New proposal brightens coal talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Coal mine operators produced a new contract offer, dramatically brightening the outlook for settling a nationwide coal strike that triggered thousands of layoffs in other industries during its first day.

Union and industry negotiators, emerging early today from a 12-hour bargaining session, indicated they are close to agreement.

Harry Patrick, United Mine Workers secretary-treasurer, said the proposal was "pretty good." Chief industry negotiator Guy Farmer said it "could settle the contract."

UMW President Arnold Miller said union leaders were studying the proposal and would resume negotiations later today.

The industry made its proposal late Tuesday night as the day-old strike tightened its grip on the already weakening economy. U.S. Steel Corp., the nation's biggest producer, announced a 25 per cent production cutback and said it would lay off 13,700 employes this week. Major railroads furloughed more than 2,000 workers.

The giant Tennessee Valley Authority, with only a 44-day coal reserve, called for a voluntary cutback in electricity use in its seven-state power area. It asked for a 50 per cent reduction in street lighting, shorter business hours, a ban on outdoor electrical advertising and the lowering of thermostats to 65 degrees.

In the coal fields, striking miners debated how long they could hold out without paychecks or strike benefits, which the UMW does not pay.

The strike, which began officially at 12:01 a.m. Tuesday, shut down mines producing 70 per cent of the nation's coal. Even if a tentative agreement was reached this week, the UMW said it would take at least two weeks to get a new contract ratified and to put the mines to work again.

Farmer described the new industry offer as "a complete, total package," which was put forth "not as a bargaining gambit" but as a proposal "that could settle the contract."

Patrick agreed, saying it put both sides "closer together than ever before" after nine weeks of negotiations. "At this point, I'm very, very optimistic that we can wrap this thing up very soon," he told newsmen.

COAL WAITING TO MOVE — Two barges and a string of coal cars along the Ohio River in Pittsburgh, Pa., were the last shipments of coal to move before the UMW strike took effect.

Congress eyes fat pay hikes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A lameduck effort is brewing for congressmen to vote themselves a pay raise of up to $15,900 and to boost salaries for other top federal officials.

Staff proposals disclosed Tuesday by Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, would boost congressmen's present $42,500 a year pay to between $55,400 and $58,400 by 1977.

Gross said the effort is obviously planned during Congress' lameduck session, which starts next week, in what he called "an almost incredible, unconscionable move at this moment."

Chairman Gale W. McGee, D-Wyo., of the Senate Post Office committee confirmed pay raise proposals have been drafted but suggested no effort will be made to put one through Congress unless President Ford leads the drive.

McGee said through a spokesman he thinks a pay raise for congressmen, federal judges and agency supervisors is needed, particularly by 9,000 to 10,000 supervisors whose pay is now frozen at $36,000.

But he said in view of the Senate's rejection in March of proposed pay raises, including a hike to $52,800 for congressmen, it would be useless to make another try unless Ford asks for it.

"There's no use going through another bloodbath for nothing," said the McGee spokesman. "We're going to have to meet with the President and see if something can be worked out."

But Gross said it would be an outrage for congressmen to vote themselves and other top officials a pay raise while Ford and Congress' Democratic leaders are declaring war on inflation.

Another Iowa Republican, Rep. Bill Scherle, called the proposals a "blueprint to fleece the taxpayers' pockets."

Gross said backers of the pay raise are bent on getting Congress' action during the lameduck session in hopes of getting more votes and letting the old Congress, rather than the new one convening in January, take the blame.

The 92 lameduck House members retiring or defeated in last week's election no longer have anything to lose by voting for a pay raise. And many returning congressmen might be more willing to vote for a pay raise at a time when their next reelection is a full two years away.

A House source said staff development of pay raise proposals was originally authorized by lameduck House Post Office Committee Chairman Thaddeus J. Dulski, D-N.Y. Dulski could not be reached for comment in his Buffalo, N.Y., district.

Rockefeller admits role in book cash

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nelson A. Rockefeller testified today that he asked his brother Laurance to help find investors to finance a book critical of former Supreme Court Justice Arthur J. Goldberg, his 1970 opponent for New York governor.

The vice presidential nominee's testimony portrayed him as more central to the publication of the book than he has so far acknowledged. He said any discrepancies are due to a "sketchy" memory rather than any attempt to cover up the facts.

Testifying before live television cameras in the Senate Caucus Room, Rockefeller told Rules Committee members that a controversial series of loans and gifts by him to close aides and public officials posed no conflict of interest and were not intended to corrupt those who accepted them.

In a counterattack aimed at critics of those transactions, Rockefeller said his family's great fortune does not blind him to the need for morality in public service.

The loans and gifts sprang from a personal sense of "sharing," Rockefeller said, and added: "I do not believe the day has yet come ... where the decencies of human relationships disqualify one for public office."

Some Rockefeller critics have suggested that at least some of the gifts and loans may have violated New York state law. Chairman Howard W. Cannon of the Rules Committee said the "nagging question" lingers as to whether they placed those who received them into "psychological servitude" to Rockefeller — whether or not that was intended.

"There is a sign on the political wall that reads, 'No tipping allowed,'" Cannon said.

It is illegal in New York to give public officials gifts valued at more than $25 with the purpose of influencing or rewarding official conduct. But Rockefeller said he had no such intent.

ABC broadcast today's session under a rotation set up by the three major television networks.

Rockefeller also disclosed that in the years 1957-1974 he gave a total of $3.26 million to Republican campaigns, including $1 million to his own fruitless attempts to win the GOP presidential nomination.

The political gifts included $62,025 to former President Richard M. Nixon's 1972 campaign and $200,000 to the 1968 campaign for the nomination of George M. Romney.

Rockefeller said that over the last 17 years his brothers John, Laurance and David, and his sister Abby gave a total of $2.85 million in support of his four state and three national campaigns.

He said his stepmother, the late Martha Baird Rockefeller, gave him an average of $1.5 million for each of the seven campaigns.

Housing bill wins Senate approval

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A long-awaited bill aimed at providing more housing for Ohio's low and moderate income families cleared a one-day legislative session Tuesday and went to the desk of Gov. John J. Gilligan.

It represented a victory after three years of effort by the outgoing chief executive, but ironically, it took a nudge from GOP Gov.-Elect James A. Rhodes to get the job done.

Rhodes sent a letter to reluctant Republicans in the Senate, saying in part that the emergency legislation is needed to give "badly needed" housing to those on low incomes "particularly the elderly," and asserted it will help provide jobs for Ohioans, a favorite campaign theme of the former two-term governor.

The governor-elect's letter pried the bill from the Senate Finance Committee (8-1) with only lame duck Sen. Howard C. Cook, R-1 Toledo dissenting, and then on to 27-2 floor approval.

The House concurred in Senate amendments to the measure, which passed the lower chamber originally July 19, by a vote of 72-14. Legislative aides of Gilligan said he probably will sign it within a few days.

Senators and representatives pulled from the rules committees of the two chambers a total of six bills and one resolution, passing them before winding up all major business of the 110th General Assembly which convened Jan. 1, 1973.

Skeleton sessions are planned for final adjournment Dec. 10.

One of the resurrected bills, which would have died had it not been for the one-day session to meet what was described as Ohio's housing crisis, also was influenced by Rhodes in 1970.

It called for stricter requirements for Ohioans obtaining real estate brokers' and salesmen's licenses. A special commission was named by Gilligan to draft the bill after Rhodes and some Republican friends, but Democrats over the years as well, were challenged for the manner in which they obtained licenses.

Rhodes got his upon leaving office after an oral examination.

The measure, with bi-partisan support, provides for a real estate licensing superintendent and expands membership on the present three-member licensing board to five, giving it a public representative for the first time. Written examinations also are required specifically.

Cook, defeated in a bid for re-election in the May primary, did not mention Rhodes by name, but charged in a floor speech that Republicans did a "flip flop," yielding in 24 hours to the demands of big labor unions pressing for the housing bill.

Metzenbaum might quit

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Senators tend to resent newcomers who get a head start via resignation of the senator they replace, Sen. Howard Metzenbaum says, but he says he would consider early resignation if John Glenn asked him to do so.

"I'm not at all sure John Glenn would want to be a party to coming in that way," Metzenbaum added Wednesday, "but I wouldn't close the door to the senator-elect if he wants to discuss it."

He said he had given the matter little thought and that he hadn't talked with Glenn about it.

Metzenbaum, like Glenn a Democrat, said he has found resentment among senators over what he called "such political gamesmanship that would give a leg up on seniority.

"I've talked with a number of other senators who said this happened to them when they came in and they never forgave those who got ahead of them that way," Metzenbaum added.

He also said that "there are still a number of matters I hope to conclude before the end of the session."

Glenn, who defeated Metzenbaum in a hard-fought primary last May, said after hearing the remarks that Metzenbaum is "playing little games ... who talks to whom or who asks whom, all that kind of stuff."

If Metzenbaum were to resign from the Senate before his term expires Jan. 3, Glenn could fill the seat and outrank seven other freshmen Democrats elected last week.

Metzenbaum said he intends to stay in the Senate until the end of Congress' current lameduck session.

He said he had made a commitment to Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield "that I would continue working right through the session."

Rhodes increases ballot margin

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — James A. Rhodes' margin in Ohio's gubernatorial election Nov. 5 has increased to 13,620— an increase of 36 votes—in written reports received so far by Secretary of State Ted W. Brown, his office said today.

The former Republican governor's lead as of the day after the election, on the basis of telephoned reports, stood at 13,584 over Democratic Gov. John J. Gilligan.

Brown said the latest update was on the basis of written reports from 18 counties, most of them considered Republican counties.

Gasoline tax refuses to die

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Energy Administration has sent President Ford a long menu of policy choices for reducing U.S. dependence on foreign oil, but the featured listings are conservation measures like extra gasoline taxes and restrictions on downtown parking.

The 780-page "Project Independence" report published Tuesday by the FEA had been ordered by former President Richard M. Nixon, who said it should be a "blueprint" for the United States to achieve independence from imported oil by 1980.

However, the study later was downgraded to an "option paper" and it concludes that complete oil independence by 1980 is neither possible nor desirable.

As expected the report drew mixed reviews.

Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton said the report "is an excellent beginning" on a national energy policy. Morton forced the ouster of FEA Administrator John C. Sawhill, who oversaw the compilation of the study.

"Sound conservation practices will be combined with programs of research and development to provide the American people with a sound energy base during the decade ahead," Morton said.

Thirteen citizen groups called it a "positive — though faltering — first step," while the National Coal Association termed it a "flawed document" that gives short shrift to coal.

The study's suggestions on extra gasoline taxes and downtown parking restrictions theoretically would reduce gasoline consumption and make mass transit more attractive.

President Ford earlier this year rejected higher gasoline taxes, although some members of his administration support such a move.

Reduced energy demand was one of three main strategies for lessening oil imports by 1985, the others being an acceleration of domestic fuel production and creation of oil stockpiles for protection against international blackmail by oil exporting countries.

The report offered no recommendations, leaving that up to Morton as chairman of the President's cabinet-level Energy Resources Council.

Other fuel-saving possibilities included in the report were:

—A mandatory standard for 20-miles-per-gallon automobile performance.

—A 25 per cent tax credit for insulating existing homes.

—Heating and cooling standards, lighting standards, and a 15 per cent energy-improvement investment credit for commercial buildings.

—Efficiency standards for appliances.

—Industrial conservation, supported by research programs.

—Projects to demonstrate and promote energy conservation standards for power plants.

The report said energy conservation could quickly reduce dependence on oil imports and the dollar-drain; ease inflation; stretch domestic oil and gas supplies; and make other policy decisions more reliable.

Arafat arrives for U.S. meeting

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Surrounded by bodyguards, Yasir Arafat landed by helicopter in the United Nations' garden today to take to the General Assembly his case for a Palestinian state.

He was immediately whisked inside U.N. headquarters, and Saadat Hassan, the permanent representative of the Palestine Liberation Organization in New York, said Arafat was taking a nap.

He declined to say where the bearded, 44-year-old PLO leader was, but indicated he was dozing in Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim's personal apartment on the 38th floor.

Arafat and his party arrived from Kennedy Airport after a flight from Algiers. Their two choppers touched down in the U.N. garden just before 7 a.m.

Hassan said the party included Arafat, four advisers and 10-12 Palestinian security men, swelling the PLO contingent to about 30-32 persons.

Security for Arafat's arrival was unprecedented in New York, where feeling against the PLO runs high among the city's two million Jewish residents.

There were several police and Coast Guard launches in the East River immediately behind the 39-story glass, steel and stone building.

The 16-acre U.N. complex was closed to the public. Outsiders could enter only with special passes from a temporary outpost across the street.

New York police canceled all days off and redistributed its manpower to concentrate on the midtown Manhattan area, where 16 PLO members were staying in the Waldorf Towers section of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

Police used bomb-sniffing German shepherds to comb through the garage, elevators and five floors where 15 suites were reserved for the PLO delegation, but found nothing. The suites range in price from $150-$450 a day.

Outside, some 1,000 police kept demonstrators away from the hotel. Police sharpshooters were perched in nearby skyscrapers and a police helicopter shuttled from the hotel to the U.N. headquarters, keeping an eye out for demonstrations.

Snow, cold rain chill eastern U.S.

By The Associated Press

Snow and rain fell over a large part of the northern half of the nation from the Rockies to the Atlantic today and a frosty chill dipped deep into the South.

While snowfall generally was light, up to 3 inches was expected by nightfall in parts of southern Minnesota and adjacent South Dakota. One-inch accumulations were common overnight in sections of North Dakota, Upper Michigan and upstate New York.

An additional inch at Hancock, Mich., brought the depth in that normally heavy-snow region to 6 inches before dawn.

Rain and drizzle sprinkled areas south of the snow belt and were widespread from the Ohio Valley to New England.

Clear skies prevailed across the South, but temperatures dropped into the crisp middle and lower 30s as far south as central Georgia.

In contrast, 90-degree heat held sway through Southern California again Tuesday. The mercury bulged to 91 at San Diego, 7 degrees above the previous record for the date, and soared to 93 under clear skies at Los Angeles, also a record for Nov. 12 there.

Strong winds raked the high Plains from northeastern Colorado to southeastern Montana and held temperatures there in the 50s overnight. Gusts to 48 miles an hour rocked Cheyenne, Wyo., and a high-wind warning was posted for sections of northeast Colorado.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 21 at Duluth, Hibbing and International Falls, Minn., to 71 at Los Angeles.

Man enters innocent plea in son's poisoning death

HOUSTON (AP) — Ronald C. O'Bryan has pleaded innocent to charges he killed his eightyear-old son by giving him poisoned Halloween candy.

The portly, 30-year-old optician stood almost without expression Tuesday as prosecutor Mike Minton read indictments charging him with poisoning his son, Timothy, 8, and attempting to poison his daughter, Elizabeth Lane O'Bryan, 5, to collect some $61,000 in insurance.

District Court Judge Frank C. Price set Jan. 6 as the date for O'Bryan's trial and a Dec. 16 date for pre-trial hearings.

O'Bryan is also charged with attempting to kill three other children by placing potassium cyanide in Halloween candy — in an attempt to cover up the death of his son.

Judge Price appointed a Dallas lawyer, Richard Harrison, to represent O'Bryan after the defendant said he was broke and could not afford counsel. Harrison had been representing O'Bryan since his arrest last week.

Earlier Tuesday, District Court Judge Stanley Kirk ruled against reduction in O'Bryan's $100,000 bond because of the nature of the alleged offenses.

O'Bryan was charged with capital murder in his son's death under the same statute that punishes murder for hire. If convicted, he could be given the death penalty.

Judge Kirk set bonds of $25,000 each in the other four attempted murder indictments.

Robert Ballew Jr., an insurance agent, testified that O'Bryan called him late last September and wanted to insure the lives of his children for $20,000 each.

Both Ballew and Eugene T. Shephard Jr., cashier of a Pasadena bank where O'Bryan had obtained $10,000 more in insurance policies on his children's lives through a bank club, testified that the defendant called them on on the morning after his son died of poisoning to report the death.

A chemical salesman, David Lee Jackson, said O'Bryan had come into his shop sometime during the latter part of October and attempted to buy potassium cyanide. He said that only a large five-pound jug of the chemical was available, and O'Bryan was apparently discouraged by the $40 to $50 price tag, and did not make the purchase.

Jackson said he recommended O'Bryan try another chemical firm.

Food price hikes studied at hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's inflation watchdog agency is directing its first major effort at supermarkets which raise the price of goods already on display. But a prominent consumer organization is boycotting the effort because it says the practice costs shoppers less than a dime a week.

The Council on Wage and Price Stability opens hearings on the practice today. The hearings represent to a large degree the council's ultimate weapon in the government's war on inflation.

Council Director Albert Rees says the hearings follow widespread irritation among consumers who feel they are being gouged by layers of successively higher price stickers on groceries and other products.

But the executive director of Consumers Union, a non-profit product-testing organization, declined an invitation to testify.

The official, Rhoda H. Karpatkin, said the issue is insignificant, making a difference of less than a dime a week in a family's weekly food bill.

"Your failure to deal with the serious issues may inevitably lead to speculation over whether these hearings are some form of government put-on," she wrote to Virginia Knauer, President Ford's consumer adviser. Knauer and Rees are cochairing the hearings.

The invitation to testify was accepted, however, by the Consumer Federation of America and the National Consumers Congress.

Because the council can't roll back wage or price increases, public hearings are its only recourse short of requesting a personal appeal from President Ford to bring business or labor into line.

Some food chains have discarded the practice of marking up prices of items on the shelf.

"We want to get them to say why they've announced their policy and find out why some of the other chains have not announced such a policy," Rees said in an interview.

But the witness list included no chains still marking up shelf items.

A council spoksman explained that the list of industry witnesses was prepared by the National Association of Food Chains. An association spokesman said it had "no particular motivation" for not including representatives of stores that mark up shelf prices.

"This is adequate as far as we're concerned," said the council spokesman.

Rees has said the hearings are part of a larger investigation into the price increases tacked on by supermarkets, wholesalers and other middlemen as food moves from the farm to shopping bags.

Alaska braces for storm, new waves of flooding

NOME, Alaka (AP) — Communities along the storm-battered northwest Alaska coast braced for a second powerful storm today as flood waters began to recede.

No casualties were reported after Bering Sea waves whipped inland by strong winds flooded sections of Nome and surrounding villages in what Gov. William A. Egan called a "full scale disaster."

Nome and some other communities along the coast were without adequate food, drinking water and power as the second storm approached.

Early today forecasters at the National Weather Service in Anchorage were tracking a second storm front that appeared destined to follow closely the trail of the first hurricane-force winds.

"Right now this second storm is near Adak Island in the Aleutian chain and it's going eastward at a very fast rate," said forecaster Dave Evanson. "I think it will turn northeastward and go into the western part of Alaska and follow the same pattern except we expect this one will be more to the east and therefore more inland."

Evanson said the storm center will come close to Nome but is likely to be a greater threat to surrounding villages.

The weather service said flood waters in the area were dropping early today but portions of Nome which had been under five feet of water were still covered.

Some buildings were destroyed. Residents battled the floodwaters in high winds and freezing temperatures.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, anxiously watching developments in the coal strike, took a substantial early loss today, then gained most of it back again.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was exactly unchanged at 659.18 in a rebound from a loss of more than 7 points earlier. Losers continued to hold a moderate edge on gainers over all on the New York Stock Exchange, however.

Analysts said reports of progress in coal contract talks Tuesday night helped take the edge off the early selloff.

ITE Imperial was the most-active issue on the Big Board, up ⅝ at 14¾. A 171,400-share block traded at that price.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index was down .29 at 68.26.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index was off .12 at 38.88.

Syntex, the Amex volume leader, rose ¼ to 39⅞.

Republicans, led by Senate Finance Chairman Max Dennis, R-10 Wilmington, had been set to block the bill on Monday before a dinner meeting with Rhodes Monday night and the letter that followed about noon Tuesday.

Cook said he favored the bill in concept. Several members of both chambers joined the Toledoan in stating they feared a revenue bond feature of the legislation will fail to meet court tests. They asserted the state cannot take advantage of the bond issue plan without voter approval, even though bonds would be repaid with non-tax revenues.

Indeed, Rhodes indicated he had similar fears. In his letter, he told the Republican senators that if the courts should strike down that part of the bill, "we have the alternative to place a housing authority bill, supported by the full faith and credit of the state, before the people of Ohio. . .?

Dennis' committee made several technical changes before the Senate and House finally bought the bill. Among them was the addition of language from the federal Davis-Bacon act requiring the payment of union level wages on all residential construction involving eight or more housing units.

That language reflected a compromise worked out at the national level earlier this year between housing interest parties which lobbied successfully for passage of the 1974 Housing and Community Development Act.

The bill, which the Gilligan Administration requested in 1971, increases the power of the existing seven-member Ohio Housing Development Board.

Under its provisions, the board would be able to issue tax free revenue bonds and then make and guarantee housing loans to individuals, builders, developers, and others. Bonds and loans could start to flow late next year, barring adverse court rulings.

Purchasers of the bond would have to pay no tax on earnings, which under current market conditions, probably would be about 7 per cent. The board then could make loans at 1 or 2 per cent above 7 per cent — just enough to cover administrative costs.

William A. Losoncy, executive director of the board, said the measures makes the agency "active instead of passive." Its current duties consist primarily of providing seed money to non-profit organizations so that they can obtain housing loans.

The board has used about $400,000 so far in its three years of existence, with the funds coming from unclaimed funds held by the state for longer than 10 years. So far, the agency has helped provide only about 700 housing units.

An unanswered question

A bright high school girl of our acquaintance put a hard question to us a couple of days after the election. How come, she inquired, only 38 per cent of the country's voting-age population turned out at the polls?

The question was not asked casually. The girl badly wanted an answer, all the more so because she had suffered a big disappointment on election day: having followed the campaigning at local, state and national levels with keen interest, she was too young to vote. She could not understand why so many who were eligible to exercise this great privilege missed the opportunity.

We find it hard to understand, too. The question is a galling and disquieting one for any citizen concerned about the health of our system of representative government. For what a 38 per cent turnout at the polls indicates is that far more than half of the electorate lacked sufficient interest to bother voting even though Watergate so unmistakably underscored the importance of voting.

Some argue that Watergate-bred cynicism about the political process was a principal factor in keeping people at home on election day. This may be, but how wrong-headed that reaction is! When the system is under stress, when problems cry out for action, that is the time for citizens to make their voices heard.

A WORD EDGEWISE . . . . By John P. Roche

Nixon's revenge?

WASHINGTON — There really isn't much to say about the election that was not said in anticipation. However, the consequences of the overwhelming Democratic victory are clouding a number of crystal balls. It could be an omen of a great triumph in 1976, returning the Democrats to the White House. On the other hand, it could be Richard Nixon's revenge.

The essential problem lies in the nature of Congress, which is a collective noun, not a cohesive institution. To put it differently, Congress has a superb talent for wrecking operations. But when it comes to creating something, the legislators are simply (except under extraordinary circumstances) incompetent. Since the nation was started, it has been the President's job to serve. With the ball in its court, the legislature can then crank up and send the proposal off to a committee, which in turn sends it to a sub-committee. If money is involved, as it usually is, the Presidential project has to go through two labyrinths in each House.

Occasionally you get efficient party leadership in Congress capable of initiative vis-a-vis the President. This was the case in the 1950s, when Speaker Sam Rayburn and Senate Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson ran a couple of tight ships. But the day Johnson took the veil as Vice President, the Senate heaved a collective sigh of relief and settled down to a peaceful life with Mike Mansfield. In fairness to the Montana Senator, one of his convictions is that the Senate should not be whipped into line: He is able and active, but refuses to put the arm on a recalcitrant colleague.

On the House side, the death of Rayburn put John McCormack into the Speaker's chair. In my judgment, McCormack's talents have been grossly underestimated. He may not have been a Rayburn, but by comparison with gentle Carl Albert he looks, in retrospect, like Napoleon. To summarize, the enormous Democratic majorities that will mass in both houses next January will be virtually leaderless.

Moreover, it is an odd truth that party discipline is easier to maintain on a small majority than a big one. The huge majorities that rode in on F.D.R.'s coattails in 1936 soon degenerated into squabbling factions. The Republicans, confronted by Roosevelt's 1937 "Supreme Court Packing" proposal, made a deliberate decision to lie low and let the Democrats kill each other. It worked like a charm.

If we look at the type of Democrats who were elected this time, we find that they are liberal and action-oriented. The Conservative Coalition took it on the chin, and the Congress should be "veto-proof." The last time this happened was in 1964, and the inhabitant of the White House was delighted — he wasn't worried about getting his vetoes sustained, but in passing progressive legislation. Today, however, we have a conservative President with two years in which to clobber the Democrats for not, say, solving inflation.

I don't think Mr. Ford has the foggiest notion of what to do about the economy. He is not alone in this, but he is going to be sitting there, batting down various congressional measures on the ground that they will make the situation worse. Congress will override his vetoes, but in the collective political consciousness of the American people the Democrats will be in the cross hairs. If inflation increases (as I'm afraid it will), President Ford will be in the position in 1976 of saying, "Look friends, you sent me this bunch of impractical dreamers. What have they done? Is food cheaper? Are homes being built? This time give me a Congress I can work with."

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 14

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)

A mixed day, bringing some favorable and some adverse influences. Job associates are in tune with your efforts right now, but you can expect some ups and downs in a romantic situation.

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)

Business and domestic matters may conflict with each other. Possibly disturbed, your judgment may be clouded. Don't commit yourself to any new undertaking.

Some challenges possible, but face them—with confidence. With the Geminian's excellent foresight and ingenuity, you should solve all situations successfully.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)

A good day for promoting business matters, with some unexpected good luck possible. Look for unusual cooperation from associates.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Even though stars promise some new opportunities for advancement, study each proposition and suggestion from the long-range point of view. Go beyond the immediate in your thinking.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Routine, the things you planned and expected would run "just so" may suffer some delays now. Take in stride, however, and go on to something else until clouds lift and you get a better perspective.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Avoid overtaxing yourself—a tendency now. Temper your ambitions and desires with common sense.

Do not judge the actions of others lightly—or with suspicion. Study all factors carefully and you will arrive at more reliable conclusions.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

You can make unusual progress in many areas now. Get your mind clucking early, and in tune with present trends.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to Feb. 19)

Aspects indicate the possibility of some deception in your area. Be alert and ready to counteract with firmness. Above all, avoid those who have deceived you before.

YOU BORN TODAY are, in some ways, a dual personality. You have an extremely frivolous side which, if you emphasize, could lead to bohemianism and a complete waste of your many talents. On the other hand, there's the serious side which, if developed along with your fine abilities, could bring you to top-flight success. You could shine in the world of science—especially in medicine, chemistry, minerology or engineering. But you also have creative inclinations and may take up art or music as a career.

Letter To The Editor

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

All of us acquainted with the neighborhood school concept have a little knowledge as to what is being carried out there. (Mind you, I said little knowledge).

I have had various individuals tell me they no longer feel like supporting our schools because children are being pampered beyond reason simply by a misguided few, children are not learning in the schools, children are undisciplined to the point of being arrogant and destructive, teachers are not interested in the children's education and welfare, school administrators are on an ego trip creating chaos in the educational process, money is being spent on such trivial things as carpeting and that sports and social pleasures appearing the overriding reasons for going to school.

Why is the wrong side, or what appears to be the wrong side, always brought out? There are young people earnestly seeking a good education; there are many young people who respect administrators and teachers; there are many young people who respect property rights and acts of vandalism never enter their minds; there are teachers and administrators who adhere strongly to principles involving education and the ultimate goals of their professions; there are young people interested in sports and social activities knowing well their education is primary; and there are school administrators who care for various points of view and improving educational procedures.

So why always look at the ugliness of a situation? There is good and bad in everything we do.

Without support of the Miami Trace electorate, those who care are forgotten. The young people will pay for the misguided few. Please reconsider your stance in this situation and support those who care. Without you, we fail. With you, we can restore and improve educational programs for the young people in the Miami Trace schools.

Ohio Perspective

Road and bridge costs skyrocket

By ROBERT E. MILLER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A private evaluation of Ohio's rural roads and bridges estimates it would cost almost $4.5 billion to bring them up to par.

The Road Information Program (TRIP), a national organization created by roadbuilding firms in the 50 states, gave the information in a recent report on Ohio. Similar information went to other states.

State Transportation Director J. Phillip Richley did not dispute the figure and said state and local officials have known of the problem for years.

"They don't give us any answers — such as where to get the money," Richley said.

He also questioned if there may be political motivation by groups such as the Ohio Contractors Association which is waging an effort in Washington and Ohio to safeguard federal and state monies earmarked for roadbuilding. Richley noted growing pressure for other modes of transportation.

The Ohio Constitution earmarks revenue from the 11-cents per gallon gasoline tax and other use taxes for highway improvements and construction. Proposals to lift the constitutional restriction have been offered in recent legislative sessions.

TRIP's report stated Ohio has about 47,022 miles of roads that are deficient and in need of repair. Richley said only 17,000 miles of the total are state highways while the others are county and township roads.

The contractors' group said the cost of bringing roads up to desired standards is $3.9 billion, based on 1974 construction costs. This would involve correcting broken pavement, dangerous curves and lack of road berm space.

The study listed 5,910 Ohio Bridges — among a total of 39,000—as in need of repair and estimated the cost at $513 million, an average of $86,850 per bridge. It noted they are "overage and outmoded" for present vehicle requirements.

The report noted no bridges are in danger of collapse if existing weight limits are followed.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

An overdose of peaches?

DEAR ABBY: I read in your column that a guy named Walter, age 52, had a heart attack, and he got well enough to play tennis three times a week, but not well enough to make love to his old lady.

I am 56, have had two heart attacks, and I make love to three different dames three nights a week.

Tennis I'll leave to Walter. Sign me . .

GREEDY IN GEORGIA

DEAR GREEDY: Too many peaches could give you more than an heart attack.

DEAR ABBY: How do you forget a guy? He and I had a great relationship for two months, then his old girl friend started calling him and he started seeing her again, and that's when I lost him.

He said he thought he could care for me, and I know he meant it. I fell in love with him the first night we were alone together.

When the other girl was out of the picture, things were perfect between us, but when she came back, I gradually saw him less and less. Finally I couldn't stand it any longer and told him we had to talk openly and freely. He said he cared for the other girl a lot, but he cared for me, too. He even admitted that he didn't know why he cared for the other girl because she treated him like dirt, and I treated him good.

Abby, is this what I get for being nice? I told him I couldn't handle a part-time relationship, and he said he'd think it over.

I haven't heard from him since. I am miserable and depressed. Should I call him and ask if there is still hope for us? I am 22 and he is 21. The other girl is 19. Please help me.

MISERABLE

DEAR MISERABLE: You caught him temporarily-on the rebound-but the moment his old girl friend whistled, he came running, which proves his feeling for her was only dormant, not dead.

It's strange how some people prefer those who treat them like "dirt." (They practically ask for abuse because unconsciously they don't have a very high opinion of themselves, and feel they deserve it.)

I know it's not easy to "forget" a guy you think you love, but if you concentrate on other things, instead of dwelling on him, you can do it. Start today!

DEAR ABBY: Regarding babysitters who write and complain that they can't stand dirty houses:

I was a sitter once myself, for many years, in fact. Some of the houses where I went to sit were very untidy, to say the least. But why complain and act so self-righteous? Some women are poor housekeepers because they never were taught any different. Some are lazy, and others don't feel very well most of the time.

Instead of complaining about the messy house, why not clean it up? Then you can "sit" in a clean house and also have the indescribably inner joy of helping others without being told, or expecting to be paid for it. It will make you feel good all over.

Above all, be charitable, and don't tell others about the woman's poor housekeeping. And read Corinthians 13. We all need love.

MRS. W.R. KENNEWICK, WASH.

DEAR MRS. R.: You are beautiful.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "NAGGER" IN WATERLOO, IA.: It's okay to nag your children to write their thank you notes. (Very few will unless they're nagged). But it's not okay to nag them to sit up straight, talk more slowly and distinctly, and to refrain from interrupting when someone else is talking. (An occasional reminder is much more effective. Constant naggin will cause them to tune you out entirely.)

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Set aside 90 minutes tonight for "The Gun," a made-for-TV movie appearing on ABC. It's an uncommonly good drama with an unlikely star — a .38 caliber revolver.

The question the show poses is simple: What happens to one gun after it leaves the manufacturer? But the answers that come in a finely-sketched series of vignettes may leave viewers wondering if any handgun should be allowed in the civilian marketplace at all.

The revolver in tonight's show is seen in a variety of roles — as a deadly instrument of self-protection, of quick profit, of mental illness, of crime, of innocent sport and finally of accidental tragedy.

The gun-watch covers a period of about four years, starting with the revolver's first owner, a wealthy, middle-aged clothing manufacturer who buys the piece for $68.50.

His home has been burglarized, we soon learn, and he wants the artillery for protection of his family.

He knows nothing about guns and is initially hesitant about buying one until an earnest salesman at a gun shop convinces him the revolver is entirely safe when handled properly.

All one really needs to do, the salesman says, is take about an hour's worth of lessons from a qualified firearms instructor.

"There's nothing complicated about it," he says of the gun. "It's just a piece of machinery like your car."

The customer's wife subsequently persuades him to get rid of the revolver, which he does by giving it to an elderly guard at his plant — with all the proper transfer forms filled out, of course.

The guard promptly hocks the gun. Whereupon an emotionally disturbed junior executive type forcibly acquires the revolver, paying for it while telling the pawnshop owner at gunpoint he can't wait the five days state law requires for the transfer of handguns.

Turns out the executive, grippingly portrayed by David Huffman, has lost his marbles because he can't cope with the stress of losing his job in a personnel cutback at the corporation for which he works.

And, in one of the most quietly chilling scenes I've ever seen on TV, he takes the loaded gun to a downtown plaza filled with office workers at lunch, to act out a silent fantasy of revenge.

Fortunately, there's no bloodshed. But even after his capture, the gun still isn't under lock and key. It's illegally acquired by two other men — one for family protection, the other for crime.

And even when police finally seize and put it in a collection of weapons earmarked for destruction, the gun survives, taken home by a truck driver for use in target practice.

Despite its four-year existence, the revolver is fired just once. But that one shot is the most sad, shocking moment in the show.

To learn why, watch "The Gun" tonight. Written by Emmy-winners Richard Levinson and William Link, it's a low-key, yet powerful program that manages to be solidly entertaining and thought-provoking at the same time.

Abortion bills paid

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The state auditor's office has begun complying with a court order to pay bills submitted for abortions performed on Ohio welfare recipients, it was announced Tuesday.

State Auditor-elect Thomas Ferguson, currently deputy state auditor, confirmed that the office had paid $42,003 in abortion bills as of last Friday and has approved bills totaling an additional $199,494 for payment.

The announcement was made by the Ohio chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union.

The ACLU and the National Organization for Women filed the original suit to require the auditor's office to pay the cost of welfare abortions.

State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson had refused to pay the physicians' bills until he received a court order.

The auditor's office had appealed the order issued by U.S. District Judge Robert M. Duncan and now is seeking a stay of the order in the U.S. District Court of Appeals.

Spiraling costs spelled out

NEW YORK (AP) — The pocket electronic calculator remains a hot item for retailers despite declining consumer enthusiasm, probably because it makes it possible to determine where you are in relation to inflation.

Think about it: When prices are rising at 1 or 1.5 per cent, as they did in the late 1950s and early 1960s, a simple pencil or an abacus can tell you what your dollar will be worth 10 years hence.

When they're rising at 12.1 per cent, as they did from September 1973 through September 1974, you really can't determine quickly that a $12,000 income would have to grow to $37,604 by 1984 in order to buy as much.

But with a calculator you just punch out the magic number 3,1337. Multiplying any sum by that number will tell you how much money you'd have to have in 1984 to match that sum's buying power in 1974, if inflation continues at the same rate.

Using that key number — which means it will take $3.13 by 1984 to buy what a dollar gets you today or, to put it another way, that the 1984 dollar will be worth less than 32 cents in comparison with the 1974 dollar — they find:

—Even if you paid no income tax, to match the buying power of a $7,500 annual income today you would have to earn $23,503 in 1984, if the present rate of inflation continues.

The first phrase of that preceding paragraph is, of course, almost meanlingness. Not only will you have to pay a tax, but unless the tax laws are changed you'll be in a higher, more expensive tax bracket.

—By 1984, anyone looking forward to a retirement pension of $1,000 a month would need a monthly income of $3,818 to buy the equivalent in 1974 dollars.

—A $10,000 life insurance policy would, by 1984, provide just $3,191 in terms of 1974 dollars. A $25,000 policy would provide $7,978 of protection.

Bad enough? It can be worse, say league officials. Some consumer items rise faster than others. At present rates of increase it observes these prices 10 years from now:

—A $20 bag of groceries — $80.91.

—A $2.50 plate lunch — $8.79. (And don't forget the tip.)

—A 15-cent newspaper — 62 cents.

Beer drinkers will recognize how hideous the situation could become by calculating the 1984 price of a six-pack — around $3.30 — if present trends continue.

Man battles with 6 thieves

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The odds were six to one, but Paul McKenzie managed to get off a few punches before six thieves who broke into his apartment made off with stereo equipment, a clock radio and about $30 in cash.

McKenzie told police the burglars broke in late Monday night and knocked him to the floor. But the 22-year-old Columbus man came up swinging.

One thief went flying down a stairwell from the second story apartment and another almost went off the balcony. A third finally felled McKenzie before the items were taken.

Urge voluntary coal conservation

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A state energy official has called upon Ohioans for voluntary conservation measures to extend the state's coal supply in the face of a nationwide coal miners' walkout.

David C. Sweet, chairman of the state Energy Emergency Commission, said governmental agencies have stockpiled 95 to 100 days' supply of coal and enough to meet residential needs for 35 to 40 days.

"Ohio is in good shape for a strike up to 30 days, but if it extends beyond that..." mandatory control plans could go into effect, Sweet said Tuesday.

He predicted blackouts and growing unemployment lines if the strike lasts more than one month. Sweet said 356,000 Ohioans are employed in coal-using and allied industries. The major coal burning industry, steel, would be severly affected by a strike of more than two weeks, and "in 30 days steel production could be cut back completely."

The commission's contingency plans in the event of an energy crisis call for rolling outages for industrial and residential sections.

Rolling outages are temporary, scheduled power outages aimed at distributing the inconvenience fairly. But Sweet said the strike would have to last past Christmas for such actions to be necessary.

Officials of United Mine Workers District 6 in Bellaire have predicted the walkout would last two or three weeks. Some 12,000 miners in the district joined the walkout at midnight Monday. The district includes Ohio and the West Virginia panhandle.

State Sen. Michael J. Maloney, R-Cincinnati, vice chairman of the commission, joined in Sweet's call for public conservation of electricity and other forms of energy.

Maloney said as a commission member he would not hesitate to call an energy crisis if conditions warranted.

The commission has the power to declare an energy crisis in Ohio which would permit it to adopt rules and regulations that would remain in effect for 30 days.

In the meantime, the declaration would trigger an emergency session of the legislature which could extend, modify, or rescind commission actions.

Arafat in spotlight

By FRANK N. HAWKINS JR.
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — In less than a decade, Yasir Arafat has blasted his way from desert caves into the international political spotlight.

As recently as 1965, the Palestinian guerrilla leader was directing operations against Israel from mountain hideouts overlooking the Jordan Valley.

His guerrilla group, Al Fatah, or Conquest, had only 100 members. Arafat was hunted not only by the Israelis but also by Arab leaders who saw him as a threat to their stability and security.

Thanks to Israel's humiliating defeat of the Egyptian, Syrian and Jordanian armies in 1967, Arafat and his guerrillas gained new prestige and massive backing throughout the Arab world. Al Fatah's membership swelled to 15,000, and the Arab governments have had to swallow their resentment and adopt him as a hero.

Now the 45-year-old Arafat's dark glasses, straggly beard and black-and-white checked kafiyeh, a traditional Arab headdress, are familiar in the highest Arab councils.

He regards his trip to the United Nations as his "boldest commando operation ever," the masterpiece of his career so far.

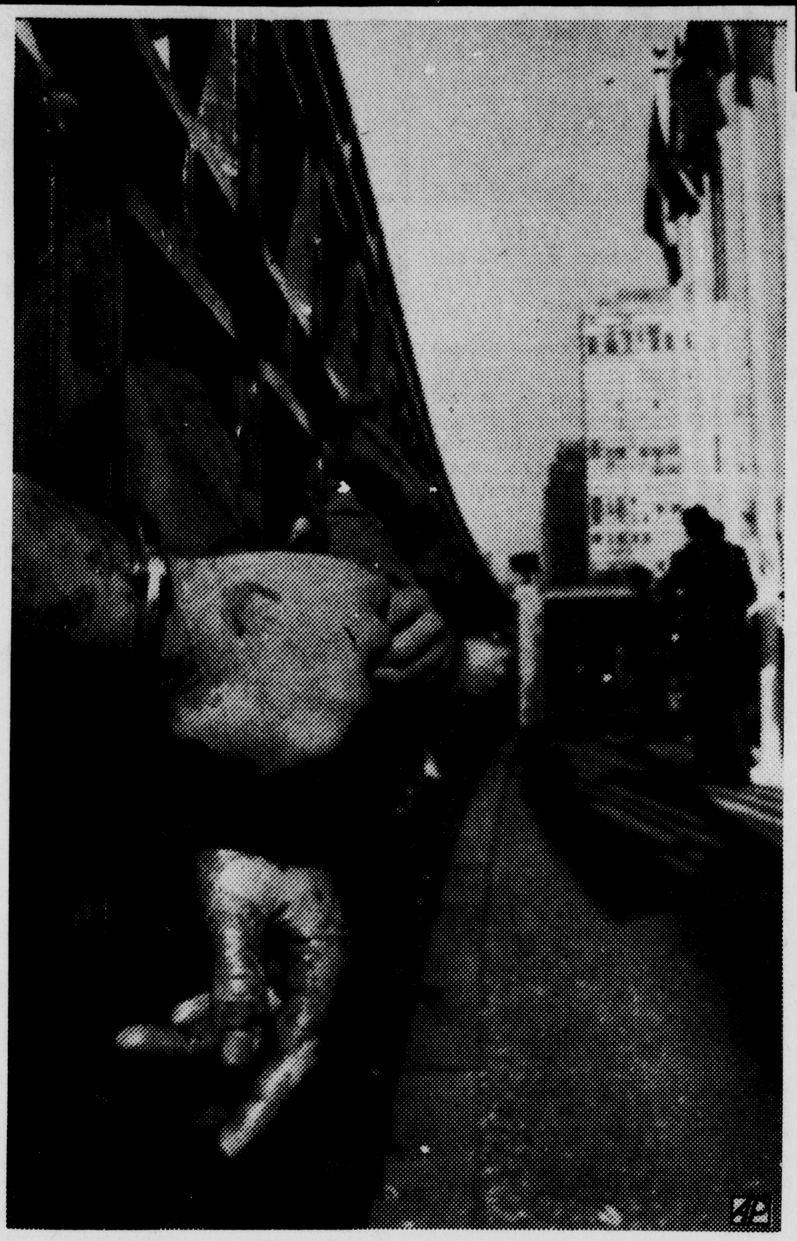
Born in Jerusalem in 1929, Arafat is believed to have been raised near the Wailing Wall in the Arab sector of the city. In his late teens he carried arms and ammunition to his father and elder brother fighting against the Jews in the 1947-48 Palestine War following the proclamation of the state of Israel.

The family moved to Gaza in 1948 and Yasir went to Cairo University to study engineering. There he became chairman of the Palestinian Students Organization and later of the Palestinian Alumni Association in the Egyptian capital.

He was credited with organizing the first fedayeen commando groups in 1956 when guerrilla raids into Israel from neighboring Arab states began.

In 1969, with the Arab world still smarting from the 1967 defeat, Arafat took command of the Palestine Liberation Organization, welding a number of guerrilla groups together under a single political umbrella.

The guerrillas suffered a serious setback in 1970 when King Hussein's Bedouin army threw them out of Jordan in a bloody civil war.



ANTI-ARAFAT DEMONSTRATION — Their hands covered with animal blood, members of the Jewish organization "Betar" handcuffed themselves to the main gate at the United Nations in New York to protest the anticipated arrival of Yasir Arafat, chief of the Palestine Liberation Organization. Arafat was scheduled to speak at the U.N. debate on the future of Palestine.

Bus strike now over

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Transit Authority of Northern Kentucky (TANK) buses resumed service today and wage negotiations resumed as a three-day walkout ended.

The more than 175 drivers and mechanics walked out Sunday when their old contract expired. The strike had not been sanctioned by the Amalgamated Transit Workers Union.

TANK serves three northern Kentucky counties — Campbell, Kenton and Boone — and connects with the Queen City Metro system in Cincinnati.

The publicly-owned transit firm carries 16,000 riders daily.

Members of Local 628 twice rejected negotiated settlements before walking out.

The workers are demanding the same age and fringe package received by Queen City Metro workers in Cincinnati, which totals $5.01 per hour.

State senate turns down nomination

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State senators refused Tuesday to confirm the appointment by Democratic Gov. John J. Gilligan of the same man to separate terms in two state government entities.

The vote was 10-19 against the appointment of John W. Kessler of Columbus as a member of the Ohio Building Authority. By a vote of 9-20, senators disallowed Kessler's appointment as a trustee of Ohio State University.

Kessler, a Republican, was identified as a contributor to Gilligan's unsuccessful re-election campaign.

But Sen. Michael J. Maloney, R-7 Cincinnati and others of both parties, also said they objected to Kessler being named to two jobs.

The Senate, at the legislature's one day session, confirmed these appointments by Gilligan:

Oliver Ocasek, Akron, Marigene Valiquette, Toledo, both Democrats, to the Ohio Residential Facilities Commission.

The Senate confirmed these appointments by the secretary of state:

Charles E. Shanklin, Republican, Milford Center; Barbara Rodemeyer, Republican, Canton; Daniel O'Laughlin, Democrat, Cleveland, and Alexander Prisley, Athens, as members of the newly created Ohio Elections Commission.

Start UC bargaining

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — University policy as well as economic issues looms as a point of contention as the American Association of University Professors assumes bargaining rights for 1,450 faculty members at the University of Cincinnati.

The AAUP won the right to represent the faculty by a vote of 673-583 in balloting last week. Results were announced Tuesday.

UC President Warren G. Bennis said he would recommend to the board of directors formally name the AAUP as bargaining agent when the board meets Dec. 3.

Bennis warned however, that "One issue that must now be faced is the role of students under collective bargaining.

"The board and the administration have affirmed that the student stake in university governance should not diminish as a result of bargaining," he said.

Rain aids winter wheat outlook

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rain has helped improve prospects for the 1975 winter wheat harvest, still eight months away, according to a weekly weather report by the Agriculture Department.

Although the report did not make any long-range predictions, it said widespread rains last week helped recently planted winter wheat to a good start in much of the eastern half of the country and in the Pacific Northwest.

In Oklahoma and Texas, recent heavy downpours in some sections have delayed field work, but have helped build up soil moisture reserves in many areas. The report said, however, wheat farmers in parts of the northern Plains were still plagued by a lack of moisture as of Nov. 10.

The Department will issue its first official appraisal of 1975 winter wheat prospects on Dec. 23. By then officials hope to have a good idea on how much acreage farmers planted this fall as well as an estimate on next summer's winter wheat harvest.

In another report Tuesday, USDA said farmers can expect currently high wheat prices to hang on through mid-1975. The average farm price of wheat nationally on Oct. 15 was $4.85 per bushel, up 20 per cent from last July.

"Worsening crop situations in major exporting countries and slow-paced marketings by U.S. farmers have been the primary reasons for recent strength in prices," the department's Outlook and Situation Board said. "With heavy exports expected the remainder of the season, wheat prices are expected to continue strong for the balance of the 1974-75 crop year."

Another reason for the high price outlook at least through mid-1975 was the decline of this year's harvest from early indications.

The report Tuesday described the 1974 harvest as "a record crop of only modest proportions" because of weather and other problems. Output was about 1.78 billion bushels. Although up four per cent from the previous record in 1973, production was far below the 2.2 billion bushels USDA had counted on last spring.

Further, the reserve of oldcrop wheat last July 1 was only 249 million bushels, the lowest since 1948, and well below the 439 million bushels on hand at mid-1973 and 863 million bushels on July 1, 1972.

Thus, with the 1974 harvest, about 2.03 billion bushels of wheat will be on hand to meet all requirements through mid-1975. That is down 6 per cent from the supply last season.

Department experts think exports and domestic requirements may total about 1.76 billion bushels more or less in the year to end next June 30.

If correct that will mean the wheat reserve then will be changed little from the low level of last summer.

Slate appeal on women's rights bid

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A member of the Governor's Task Force on Credit for Women said the group is prepared to appeal to the Ohio Legislature if Gov. John J. Gilligan does not take action on its recommendations soon.

Cincinnati Councilwoman Bobbie Sterne said Tuesday the 21-member group still has not received any comment from the governor on its report to him.

The group reported that women were being denied credit on an equal basis with men and made recommendations to correct the situation.

"We realize things must be a little upset now because of the election," Mrs. Sterne said. "What we are hoping is that there will be a lot of interest in our proposal and the public climate will be favorable.

"That way, we hope the recommendations will not become a political issue."

If the governor fails to act, she said, the task force will seek to initiate its recommendations by legislation.

"We would probably get one of the women legislators to introduce a bill. We drafted a model bill along with our recommendations," Mrs. Sterne said.

The task force recommended that the Consumer Protection Division of the Department of Commerce be authorized to continue to accept credit discrimination complaints pending the enactment of legislation.

Young restaurant proprietors eye old friendly atmosphere

The Washington Inn restaurant is bringing back Lawrence Tipton's homemade pecan rolls to Washington C.H.

The restaurant, once famous for its warm and tasty pecan rolls, is now under new management, which plans to recapture that "old, friendly homemade atmosphere."

NEW MANAGEMENT — Members of the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce Ambassadors club flank Richard Hooks and Dan Mazza (second and third from left front), as the new managers of the Washington Inn restaurant and bar cut the ribbon to officially proclaim their opening.

DAN MAZZA, 34, of Circleville, and Richard Hooks, 30, of Washington C.H., have leased the restaurant and hotel from the Weade-Miller Real Estate firm and have employed the former chef, Larry Tipton, who has not worked at the restaurant for eight years, to continue the tradition of baking hot, fresh pecan rolls for early morning towngoers.

Also included at the restaurant will be a featured, "happy hour" daily from 4 until 6 p.m., according to Mazza, who said the after-work special was designed with the businessman in mind.

Hooks said they are hoping to eventually purchased the restaurant in full and add it to their own chain of two other restaurants — Forrest Restaurant in Circleville, and John's Place in Williamsport, under the Homa Corporation.

The young men recalled how they became restaurant proprietors in Washington C.H.

Both have been engaged in the restaurant business for over 10 years and were at one time employed by the same Ranch House Restaurant chain in Louisville, Ky.

Mazza started working when he was 16 for a dairy store chain. He became an assistant manager after high school, then left to become associated with a fast-food restaurant chain in Kentucky.

Hooks started with the Mobile Dairy Bar in Erie, Pa., went to Miami, Fla., and worked with the Quickie Food Stores chain, before heading north to Kentucky.

Eight years ago, the two met while working for the same Ranch House Restaurant chain in Louisville, Ky. Both had become managers of three restaurants each by that time and had cooperated in their businesses.

Although they both went separate ways with Mazza owning his own business in Kentucky and Hooks moving to Michigan and later Ohio, they maintained their friendship by keeping in touch.

Hooks started the Forrest Restaurant in Circleville and obtained John's Place in Williamsport. The two discussed the possibilities of a partnership and decided to combine their talents. Mazza sold his Louisville business, packed his belongings and moved to Circleville, where they formed the partnership.

JUST RECENTLY, they heard the local restaurant was available and decided to invest their capital and expand their restaurant ventures. Both men are married.

They now intend to revamp The Washington Inn with a "touch of flair" and a lot of the "good old days" aura.

The restaurant plans to have three specials daily plus a full dinner menu, featuring a 32-ounce T-bone steak and full line of seafood dishes. Breakfast specials will include the traditional homemade biscuits and gravy.

The restaurant will cater but only to private parties, said the new proprietors. They said the restaurant is equipped with two large banquet rooms — one which seats 75 people and the other with a seating capacity of 200.

6 bills approved in skeleton meet

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Sponsors negotiated out of House and Senate Rules Committees and secured passage Tuesday of six bills and one resolution that had been left pending when the lawmakers ended regular working sessions in July.

The actions came as the legislators finally worked out a bipartisan agreement on a long-awaited housing bill—the main reason leaders called the unusual one day working session.

Both houses adjourned until Dec. 10 at which time the 110th General Assembly will take final adjournment, making way for the new legislature which convenes Jan. 6.

One of the bills upgrades requirements for real estate salesmen and brokers. It was an aftermath to reports that former Gov. James A. Rhodes and several others, including Democrats, had gotten real estate licenses without any record of them taking full examinations.

The bill, among other things, would add one industry and one public member to the three-member all-industry Real Estate Commission.

It would create a Division of Real Estate in the Department of Commerce, with a superintendent, to carry out commission policies.

The commission and the superintendent would both have investigative powers provided by law.

Also passed was a labor-backed bill that would allow unions to bargain with intrastate employers about matters federal courts have said they can if the employer is engaged in interstate commerce.

Other measures reported out and approved will:

—Request the Utilities Commission to allow utilities to consider charitable contributions when figuring rate hikes before the commission, a policy they always followed until a recent PUCO regulation forbade it.

—Provide increased retirement benefits for sheriffs and their deputies and permit persons who hold those posts before Jan. 1 to choose which retirement system they want in — public employes or state highway patrol.

—Allow embalmers to remove the eyes from the body of a person who authorized it for transplant or research.

—Extend the deadline for the filing of financial reports by public institutions and taxing districts but provide a penalty of up to $750 if they don't do it within 90 days after the end of the fiscal year.

The proposal regarding the charitable expense deductions of utilities came in the form of a concurrent resolution and does not have the binding effect of law.

Spiraling demands for electric eyed

The increased use of electricity and some problems the Dayton Power and Light Co. is encountering in attempting to keep pace with skyrocketing demands were explained to members of the Washington C. H. Rotary Club at the regular weekly luncheon meeting Tuesday in the Country Club.

Jerry Morgan, of the Dayton Power and Light Co. public relations department, said that in 1963 the average residential customers used 400 kilowatts of electricity per month. That figure jumped to an average of 700 kilowatts per month in 1973, and Morgan said by 1983 it is estimated that the average customer will be using 1,200 per month.

In pointing out that those figures did not include business or industrial use, Morgan said the rate of growth of electricity use is doubling in a 10-year period.

With increased demands, the utility company has experienced production capacity problems, and the cost of constructing new facilities has created additional troubles because of high interest rates and governmental restrictions.

ONE ROTARIAN questioned Morgan about the use of atomic energy versus coal. The DP&L representative said that most of the company's plants use coal because it is the most abundant energy source in the United States. He said it has been estimated that there is a 2,000-year supply of coal in the U.S.

The continuing arguments between power companies and environmentalists was also discussed by Morgan. He said the Dayton Power and Light Co. is anti-environment and that the company is making tremendous investments for the protection of the environment. But, he said the company is appealing for reasonable propositions with environmental agencies and cited as an example the requirement for installing new sulphur removal systems in all generating plants by next year. He said technology has proven that the sulphur removal systems are not feasible.

To support his address to Rotarians, Morgan was equipped with a color film entitled, "What Time is the Power on Today?"which was produced in an attempt to explain through a number of dramatic instances what could happen if there was a serious energy pinch.

The meeting was conducted by club president Paul Crosby and the program was arranged by George Winkle.

Traffic Court

A Fayette County man charged with three traffic violations pleaded guilty in Municipal Court Tuesday and was sentenced by acting Judge Omar Schwart.

Melvin P. Webb, 40, Ohio 207, pleaded guilty to charges of driving while intoxicated, reckless operation, and fleeing an officer filed by Sheriff's deputies. He was fined a total of $275, was sentenced to three days in jail and lost his operator's license for 30 days.

Bradley A. Adams, 18, Greenfield, received a suspended three-month jail term for operating a motorcycle without a motorcycle license. Arrested by the Ohio Highway Patrol, Adams was also fined $75.

Judge reimposes fine in junk car incident

A Milledgeville man who received a suspended sentence in September for harboring junk vehicles on his property appeared in Municipal Court Tuesday and had the fine reimposed.

William Jackson, Milledgeville, had been found guilty of violating a village ordinance forbidding the keeping of unsightly junk on residential property. He was fined $50 by the judge at that time, but the fine was suspended on the condition that the mess be cleared away.

Acting Municipal Judge Omar Schwart reimposed the fine when a hearing revealed that Jackson had failed to dispose of the vehicle. He was found in violation of the conditions for the suspension of the fine and was ordered to pay the $50.

Carl E. Aber, 58, of 604 Clinton Ave., was fined $25 on a charge of intoxication filed by city police.

Charges against three other persons were dismissed at the request of the prosecuting witness.

A bad check charge filed against James W. Glass, 47, Jeffersonville, by Buckeye Mart was dismissed.

A charge of assault filed on a private warrant against Randy Nichols, 23, of 1004 Delaware St., was dismissed, as was a charge of intoxication filed against Edward A. Kuntz, 39, of 738 Eastern Ave.

Following hypnosis demonstration

Lions Club members leave meet in utter amazement

Most members of the Washington C.H. Lions Club departed from their regular semi-monthly meeting at the country Club Tuesday night in complete wonderment.

The question "Did you believe in that?" was overheard frequently at the conclusion of the meeting as the Lions Club members discussed among themselves a fascinating program on the subject of hypnosis which was presented by Dr. Charles M. Pfersick, a Washington C.H. dentist and Lions Club member.

"The word hypnosis scares a lot of people, but it's actually the power of suggestion and how well you accept suggestions," Dr. Pfersick explained at the beginning of one of the most interesting programs ever presented at a Lions Club meeting.

"ANYONE COULD learn to be a hypnotist. Learning to suggest well is the key to becoming a hypnotist," Dr. Pfersick said. "Everyone in this room can learn to be hypnotized if you'll just learn to relax enough to let someone be a key to unlock these qualities that we just don't use."

Dr. Pfersick, a graduate of Ohio State University, was assisted in actual hypnotic demonstrations during the program by three sophomore dental students from Ohio State University.

Before actually hypnotizing the students to illustrate his presentation, Dr. Pfersick said one can hypnotize a person in any position, but he preferred relaxed positions. He also said he had worked with the students earlier and had received their approval for demonstrations Tuesday night and previously., One of the demonstrations used by Dr. Pfersick was to regress two of the subjects back to their earlier lives. He took them back to elementary school where Jesse Persinger served as a teacher and had one of the dental students write his name and draw pictures on a blackboard as a first grader, third grader and sixth grader.

When Dr. Pfersick regressed dental student Mrs. Phil Howard to elementary school, he did not tell the Lions Club members that she was a former resident of Ecuador in South America and did not learn the English language until she was 14 years old. So, when teacher Richard Patton asked her to write her name and draw pictures on the blackboard she did not understand. Club member Donald Bennett, who speaks some Spanish, was summoned from the audience and the demonstration continued in the foreign language.

Another demonstration employed by Dr. Pfersick was to hypnotize one of the students and tell him he would be located in a garden, would hear a church bell ring twice and later be stung by a bumble bee. The student walked into the imaginary garden at one end of the Country Club, explained to Dr. Pfersick the types and colors of flowers that were planted there, told him he heard a church bell ring twice and later appeared to be in severe pain as he was stung on the back of his right hand by the imaginary bee.

DR. PFERSICK, who welcomed suggestions from the 84 Lions Club members present throughout the actual demonstrations, emphasized that he does not believe in suggesting physical feats to subjects such as sticking hat pins through their arms and other similar demonstrations shown on television.

During the regular business meeting conducted by club president Ralph Cook, three new members were introduced. They were Pat Riley, 644 Warren Ave., of American Aggregates, Inc.; John Gall, 1102 Genevieve Drive, a Nationwide Insurance Co. agent here, and Don Anderson, U.S. 62-S, of Mac Tools, Inc.

Richard Coates, the club's first vice president, announced that a zone Lions Club bowling tournament will be held Jan. 12 at Bowland Lanes in Washington C.H. Teams from seven area Lions Clubs will be participating in the event.

Guests for the meeting were Richard Snyder with Dr. Pfersick, Urcel Knedler with Robert Yates and William Wood with Carmen Frogale.

Muny Court jury eyes shoplifting testimony

A New Holland woman charged with shoplifting at Buckeye Mart is facing a jury in Municipal Court which will determine her guilty or innocence.

The trial opened Wednesday morning with the selection of juors and opening statements by the attorneys, city solicitor Gary Smith and defense counselor Robert Simpson.

Mrs. Carolyn Robinson, New Holland, was stopped by a security guard at the Buckeye Mart store Aug. 2 after the guard claimed she and her daughter had shoplifted nine items of baby clothing valued at just over $20.

Mrs. Flora White, employed as a guard by the discount department store, testified that she saw the daughter placing items in her mother's purse. She further testified that they were stopped outside the store and asked to return to the store office.

According to Mrs. White, the items of clothing were then found in Mrs. Robinson's purse, and the defendant signed a statement saying that she had taken the clothing. Mrs. White testified that she told Mrs. Robinson she did not have to say or sign anything.

Simpson contested the offering of the statement or clothing into evidence, saying that the defendant had been detained without being told that she would be arrested and that she was placed under pressure to make the signed statement.

Judge Omar Schwart did not immediately rule on the admissibility of the evidence. He said he would delay any ruling until further testimony as to the means used to obtain the statement had been brought to the court's attention.

Simpson was expected to call upon Mrs. Robinson and her daughter to testify for the defense.

Shoplifting charges against the daughter are presently pending in Juvenile Court.

Ulasewicz slates testimony on handling of hush money

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former New York police detective Anthony Ulasewicz, next on the witness stand in the Watergate cover-up trial, is expected to describe his role in funneling alleged hush money to the original Watergate defendants.

Ulasewicz, whose wry humor broke up the Senate Watergate Committee hearings in the summer of 1973, has said previously that he acted as conduit between Herbert W. Kalmbach, who raised the cash, and the defendants and their attorneys.

Kalmbach was grilled intensely by U.S. District Court John J. Sirica, who defended his interrogation by citing praise he received from an appeals court last week for his work in the first Watergate trial.

After dismissing the jury for the day, Sirica turned to Kalmbach, formerly Richard M. Nixon's personal lawyer, and fired 20 questions at him in drumbeat fashion, skeptically challenging his contention that he believed the money went only for humanitarian purposes.

Kalmbach had testified that not until September 1972 did he decide to stop raising funds.

Kalmbach said that not until Ulasewicz warned him that the payments were not "kosher" did he believe there was anything improper.

In pressing Kalmbach, Sirica focused on two lawyers who were asked by Nixon re-election committee officials to defend the original defendants.

Sirica asked Kalmbach if the two men, Douglas Caddy and Paul O'Brien, had not refused one of the first parcels of cash gathered by Kalmbach.

Kalmbach answered that because he did not deal directly with either Caddy or O'Brien, he believed "there was a misunderstanding between these attorneys and whoever it was that was talking to them."

Nixon blood pressure up

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon is experiencing dramatic blood pressure increases, but his doctor says he expects him to be released from the hospital late this week.

The blood pressure jump to an abnormally high of 180 over 95 was noticed Monday when Nixon, 61, was talking with a visitor. Dr. John C. Lungren, Nixon's personal doctor, said the former president's blood pressure is normally about 120 over 70 or 80.

Nixon's only physical activity is believed to be walks in his top-floor room at Memorial Hospital Medical Center, where he is recuperating from surgery to remove a blood clot from his left leg and subsequent post operative shock. He also has a slight case of pneumonia.

The Union Jack was Canada's official flag from 1763 to 1965.

Rookie coach heads selections

By GEORGE STRODE
AP Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Jerry Harris has been rewarded for leading Lima Senior High School to its second best football record in its 20-year history.

Harris, in his rookie campaign, guided the Spartans to a 7-1-1 record and was selected The Associated Press' Ohio Northwestern District Class AAA Coach of the Year.

An area panel of sports writers and broadcasters named quarterback Dick Albaugh of Whitehouse Anthony Wayne as the Northwestern Class AAA Back of the Year and Toledo DeVilbiss defensive end Farley Bell the area Class AAA Lineman of the Year.

Albaugh, a 6-foot-2, 190-pound senior, passed for 49 career touchdowns, completing 213 of 391 passes for 2,786 yards. He was 77 of 135 for 1,042 yards and 21 touchdowns in 1974.

Farley, 6-5 and 215 pounds, collected 195 tackles, 22 quarterback sacks, eight fumble recoveries and two pass interceptions in three seasons.

In Class AA, Bob Hart of playoff-bound Norwalk, 9-1-0, was the top coach, Fostoria running back Kovin Chapman the No. 1 back and Oak Harbor linebacker Mike Sprouse the top lineman.

In Class A, Steve Mays of 8-1 Findlay Liberty Benton was the Coach of the Year, Fremont St. Joseph's Joe Guyer the Back of the Year and Cory-Rawson linebacker Matt Huffman the Lineman of the Year.

Commissioner reprimands Hayes

CHICAGO (AP) — Woody Hayes, Ohio State's controversial Big Ten football coaching dean, has become the first victim of the conference's new Sportsmanlike Conduct Code.

Hayes, for his tirade following his top-ranked Buckeyes' 16-13 upset at Michigan State, was publicly reprimanded Tuesday by Conference Commissioner Wayne Duke and warned a one-game suspension will follow any repetition of his "unsportsmanlike conduct."

Hayes berated game officials and Michigan State tactics after Ohio State failed to beat the clock with a last-second touchdown try which caused the East Lansing, Mich., contest to end in confusion and bedlam.

Duke's ruling was based on a new code approved by the Conference last summer "to curtail the undesirable trends which have earmarked all of intercollegiate athletics."

Hayes, in his 24th Buckeye season, was furious after Ohio State's Brian Baschnagel scooped up a fumbled snap and darted into the end zone only to have the apparent winning touchdown cancelled because time ran out.

Hayes blasted the officials for not calling a timeout when a big pileup was slow untangling after the preceding play. Not only were Michigan State players stalling in getting back on defense, Hayes charged, but they also grabbed and held Ohio State players to prevent their lining up for the crucial last play.

"The officials were remiss," Hayes said. "You never have any explanation from them. They are not to be found any place." The official result was not announced until a lengthy post-game conference between Duke and the officials.

Duke said Hayes had "expressed publicly" his support of the new code directed against "any person who publicly is unduly critical of any game official, conference personnel, another member institution or its personnel."

Duke said he would have to study the new code further to determine if it applied only to the current season or future seasons as far as the second offense and a one-game suspension is concerned.

Hayes, whose Buckeyes dropped to fourth place in The Associated Press poll, sends his club against Iowa next Saturday at Iowa City, and then against arch-rival Michigan at Columbus, Ohio, for a Nov. 23 regular season finale.

The outspoken Hayes was short and sassy in his first public comment after being notified by Duke of his censure.

In a telephone report to Iowa coach Bob Commings' weekly press luncheon, Hayes announced: "This is Coach Hayes and I have a statement; we'll be there Saturday." Then he hung up.

Hayes long has worn his feelings on his shirtsleeves, and once before was rebuked by Duke. That was in Duke's first year as commissioner in 1971, when Hayes tore up sideline markers in a wild protest against failure of officials to call pass interference against Michigan.

In 1958, Woody astounded and angered then commissioner Kenneth (Tug) Wilson when he banned a Wilson-led band of Big Ten sportswriters from attending a preseason Buckeye practice session.

Angry Buckeyes picked to destroy Hawkeyes

HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Woody Hayes, gracious as ever, was the telephone guest at Iowa's weekly Tuesday press luncheon hosted by Coach Bob Commings.

The Ohio State coach was brief ... and to the point.

Click!

Thus, Commings got the message — as if he didn't already know it — that Hayes still was fuming over Saturday's controversial 16-13 loss to Michigan State.

"I wish Michigan State hadn't beaten them," Commings said. "The Buckeyes have to do a job on us this week for their game with Michigan to mean anything. We've got to be prepared to meet a very angry football team."

And a very angry coach. Ohio State ... 42-7.

Last week's score was 47 right — including the Upset Special — Georgia over Florida — 18 wrong and one tie for .723. For the season, the scoreboard reads 581-162-15—.721.

Upset Special of the Week ... Indiana 21, Michigan State 20. Spartans have nowhere to go but down after that thriller with Ohio State.

Second Upset Special ... Cincinnati 14, Miami of Ohio 10: Nation's second longest unbeaten streak comes to an end at 21 games.

Oklahoma 34, Kansas 7: Sooners want to hold that No. 1 ranking, but they better not be looking ahead to Nebraska.

Notre Dame 27, Pitt 14: Irish remember how Tony Dorsett ran wild against them last year.

Alabama 35, Miami, Fla. 0: Crimson Tide hasn't allowed a touchdown in three games.

Michigan 28, Purdue 7: Bring on Ohio State!

Nebraska 41, Kansas State 6: Bring on Oklahoma!

Auburn 17, Georgia 14: Bring on Alabama!

Southern California 42, Washington 14: Trojans pick up where Cal left off.

Florida 21, Kentucky 14: If Sonny Collins were available it might have a different ending.

Texas A&M 24, Rice 10: Last week's loss to SMU and last year's loss to Rice were bad Aggie jokes.

Maryland 30, Duke 15: Duke finds Maryland a pearl in the Oyster Bowl.

Houston 38, Memphis State 7: Bubba McGallion has solved the Cougars' quarterback woes.

Arizona State 35, North Carolina State 31: Defense? What's that?

Oklahoma State 24, Colorado 17: Cowboys fiesta en route to the Fiesta Bowl.

California 35, Washington State 21: How about matching Cal and Oklahoma in the Probation Bowl?

Baylor 24, Texas Tech 21: Bear fever has got us, too.

Tangerine Bowl opponents eyed

OXFORD, Ohio (AP) — Miami of Ohio University Athletic Director Dick Shrider said he hopes the University of Georgia is picked as his team's opponent in the Tangerine Bowl.

Miami, selected as MidAmerican Conference Champion, hopes to repeat its bowl victory Dec. 21.

Prospective opponents have been narrowed to four, he said — Georgia, Baylor, Clemson and Tulsa.

Ken Anderson nearing NFL passing record

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Bengals quarterback Ken Anderson, whose near-flawless passing performance Sunday erased two National Football League records, may be flirting with one of the oldest marks in the book.

Anderson's pinpoint accuracy—37 completions in his last 43 attempts—has boosted his season percentage to a sizzling 67.4. The all-time NFL record is 70.3, set in 1945 by legendary passing wizard Sammy Baugh of the Washington Redskins.

Virtually unknown until last year when he claimed the starting job from veteran Virgil Carter, Anderson has emerged as one of the NFL's biggest surprises of 1974.

He's taken over the NFL passing lead and pushed the Bengals into the League Lead in total offense.

The fourth-year pro from Augustana (Ill.) College Sunday broke the all-time NFL consecutive completion record held by Joe Namath and Len Dawson when he fashioned a streak of 16 over two games. The former record was 15.

He finished the game with 20 of 22 to shatter the all-time efficiency mark previously held by Oakland's Ken Stabler, who completed 25 of 29 against lowly Baltimore last year. Anderson's feat came against Pittsburgh, the NFL's defensive leader.

Baugh's 29-year-old record was achieved by connecting on 128 of 182 passes. Anderson, with five games remaining, has already attempted 40 more aerials than Baugh, completing 147 of 218.

The last player to complete more than 64 per cent of his passes was Otto Graham of Cleveland in 1953. He connected on 167 of 258 for a 64.7 percentage.

Anderson, who shies away from taking credit for his passing accomplishments, points to his fine group of receivers as the chief reason for his sudden success.

And he scrutinizes films in the off-season to prevent interceptions. "I'd rather throw the ball away or run with it than have it intercepted," said the 25-year-old native of Batavia, Ill.

"Really, statistics don't mean anything to me. Winning does. You could complete only four passes in a game, and if they were the right four, I'd be happy. You just do what you have to do to win," he said.

Anderson was a third-round draft choice in 1971. "He should have been a first round in anyone's book," says Bengals offensive coach Jack Donaldson, who coached Joe Namath for four years.

Louisiana Tech retains poll lead

It was business as usual for the unbeaten Louisiana Tech Bulldogs, who blanked Lamar 28-0 over the weekend for their 20th straight victory and their ninth consecutive week as the No. 1 team in the Associated Press college division poll, announced today.

For Slippery Rock, however, there was something unusual. The Rockets' 27-6 victory over Clarion State Saturday earned them a slot in the Top Fifteen for the first time in recent years.

The Bulldogs received 27 first-place votes and 716 points for the top spot from a nationwide panel of sportswriters and broadcasters, while Slippery Rock was awarded 103 votes for 13th place.

Steve Garvey named NL's most valuable

By The Associated Press

San Diego's Travis Grant says he should be a good shooter. And the man his coach says "is a machine gun" proved it with a 30-point performance against Memphis.

Grant pumped in 14 of 18 shots from the field Tuesday night to pace the San Diego Q's to a 113-104 American Basketball Association victory over the Memphis Sounds. In the only other ABA game on tap, San Antonio defeated Virginia 109-92.

Described as "a machine gun" by Q's coach Alex Groza, Grant finished with 30 points.

With the score tied at 55-55 at the half, Grant came out firing in the third quarter. He tallied 10 points as San Diego surged to an 82-79 advantage going into the final period, maintaining its lead the rest of the way.

The game's scoring honors went to Memphis' George Carter with 32.

Donnie Freeman and Coby Dietrick of San Antonio and Barry Parkhill of Virginia weren't thinking about scoring as their game neared the halfway mark. They proved it by getting ejected.

With just 38 seconds remaining in the first half, the Spurs and Squires switched from basketball to fisticuffs. San Antonio's Freeman and Dietrick and Virginia's Parkhill were ejected from the game, leading to another uproar.

Browns sellout

CLEVELAND (AP) — It took the Cleveland Browns more than half the season, but they've finally come up with a sellout crowd for a home game.

The Browns take on the old rival Pittsburgh Steelers and it was last year for the same matchup that Cleveland Stadium had all its 79,282 tickets sold prior to game time.

The Blue Lines

Goals and striving

By ANDY MERRITT

Man seldom quickly acknowledges success, but is quick to point out failure. Parents, teachers, and friends all are sure to mention expectation of success. Years of tradition state each must be successful in life and walk the beaten path on the way to wealth. Men with ideas searching for new horizons are often deemed failures. Society has set its standards for success.

Fixing goals and establishing morals has given the world a level that is acceptable. All look about to take these standards and judge success. This tends to force men to conform to the system, to seek goals that are not their own. This is wrong. Each man is distinctly different. He has various abilities, separate virtues and emotions. No man reasons the same as another. There is a different twist in thinking, no matter how many similarities are apparent.

Each man has a limit. Man should seek what is right for him, and not others. He must set his own goals, provide his own morals. He must carry the torch so others can see; he should not walk by the light of someone else.

All men must realize that no matter how dim the light of success is, it is brighter than the gloom of failure. Heed not that other's flames are brighter, but take care to keep your own burning, so it can help light others.

Nine Hi-Y Club members prepare for conference

Nine members of the WSHS Hi-Y club and advisor, Mr. George Shoemaker, are preparing to attend the annual fall conference. They will leave Friday and will return Sunday.

The purpose of the conference is to allow clubs from Ohio and West Virginia to work together on problems that Hi-Y clubs frequently encounter. This year the clubs in attendance will experience a unique program based on the development of a club and master the fundamentals of organization in perfection. Hopefully, each club that attends will return to their respective schools and communities with ideas and methods of improving their individual club and their service of initiating Y.M.C.A. ideals.

The nine members attending will be Jim Smith, David Mustine, Doug Maddux, Tim O'Flynn, Rory Souther, Mike Pope, Mike Hughes, Hugh Patton and Kevin Blair.

Leadership fights set in Assembly

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — House Republicans in next year's 111th General Assembly have called a caucus for Monday to elect their leader, although most of the attention will be on the race for leadership among majority Democrats.

House Minority Leader Charles F. Kurfess, R-83 Perrysburg, is running again for the post. He could face some opposition, but is expected to be elected.

The real battles will be among the Democrats, who will control the House 59-40 and the Senate 21-12.

In the House, Rep. Vernal G. Riffe, D-89 New Boston, is reported to have the votes needed to oust his longtime friend and onetime roommate, House Speaker A. G. Lancione, D-99 Bellaire, for the top spot. Riffe is currently Lancione's assistant.

On the Senate side, current Senate Minority Leader Anthony O. Calabrese, D-22 Cleveland, will face opposition for the position of President Pro Tem (or majority leader) from his current assistant, Sen. Oliver Ocasek, D-27 Akron.

Ocasek aides claim their man has 14 votes, but Calabrese, who is the senior member of the body and, as a result, the man who will call the caucus, has said he will summon it "whenever I have the votes."

Calabrese is confident he will win.

Sen. Michael J. Maloney, current assistant to Senate Majority Leader Theodore M. Gray, R-3 Columbus, will seek the minority leadership in the new Senate.

Gray announced Monday night that he wouldn't go after the post.

Brian Cook and Lynn Sagar

Seniors of the Week

The first featured senior this week is Lynn Sagar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Sagar, 116 Gardner Court.

As an extremely active senior, Lynn finds time for AFS, National Honor Society, the Sunburst staff, choir, Senior Y-Teens and all activities which involve girls sports. She is active in GAA and participates in volleyball, basketball and softball as well as intramural sports. This past summer, Lynn was a delegate to Buckeye Girls State. For the future, she plans to attend the University of Purdue in order to major in natural resources.

Brian Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Cook, 1229 High St., also is an extremely active senior. Brian is involved in Hi-Y, Student Council, the Youth-in-Government program, class editor for the Sunburst and a member of National Honor Society. He was an alternate to Buckeye Boys State and attended the Ohio Drug and Alcohol convention held this past summer.

He hopes to attend either Miami University or Ohio Northern University where he will study to become an orthodonist. Brian's comment was, "My years in high school have been very worthwhile; most important was that I learned to become an individual."

Although the Stars and Stripes originated in 1777, it was not until 146 years later that there was a serious attempt to establish a uniform code of etiquette for the U.S. flag.

Vet's assembly impressive

Members of the WSHS color guard opened the annual Veteran's Day assembly with the presentation of the colors. Flags included were the U.S. flag, the Ohio flag, the Navy flag, and the ROTC unit flag. The band, under the direction of Mr. Charles Shaffer, played a patriot medley by George M. Cohan which included "You're A Grand Old Flag" and "Yankee Doodle." As the flags were presented the student body was led in the pledge of allegiance. This was followed by a prayer for peace for all nations given by Mr. Eugene Ladrach, past 7th district commander.

David Mustine, student council president, introduced Mr. David A. Cropper, past department commander of Post 23. His speech included the basic idea that those who gave their lives in service for country did so for free belief, hope for tomorrow, and understanding. As a transition to the young people in the audience Mr. Cropper stated that "all are touched by war - every young person today realizes the tragedy of war." He also stated that these same young people hold the hope for the future for in them is such a strong belief in brotherhood, fellowman, and above all love.

Following the speech silence prevailed as taps were played in honor of those who have given so much.

Those participating in the program besides Mr. Cropper and Mr. Ladrach, were Mr. Henry Litz, commander of Post 25; Mr. Harold Dixon, county commander of Fayette County; Mr. Francis Morgan, past district commander; Mrs. Phil Ford, auxiliary president; and Mrs. Charles Williams, auxiliary secretary and unit Americanism chairman, past department Americanism chairman.

Winter driving tips

By JACK SOMMERS
County 4-H Extension Agent

Ohio 4-H Auto Care and Safety Club members urge auto drivers to be prepared for winter driving conditions.

Duane Lau, Assistant State Leader, 4-H, and spokesman for the group, says owners should equip their car for the unexpected. Store the following items in a carton in the trunk of your car.

FIRST AID KIT: A check with the American Red Cross for a list of proper contents for the kit.

FIRE EXTINGUISHER: Buy an approved, adequate sized extinguisher. A CO2 or 2½ pound dry chemical extinguisher is recommended.

FLASHLIGHT: This item may come in handy for reading road maps, finding a key or house number, or for making repairs at night. Get one with a magnet so it can be placed on the side of the car, freeing both hands, while changing a flat tire at night.

TIRE INFLATOR: The pressurized can is easy to use and will help you get to the nearest service station for a tire change. There are times when it is unsafe to change a tire along the roadside, because of traffic conditions, weather, position of car, or time of day.

SPARE FUSES: Your service station or auto store attendant can tell you what type and how many fuses you will need. Locate the fuse box from your owner's manual or ask your service man to show you its location before going on the road. It can be a frustrating search on a rainy or snowy night when you have no lights.

FLARES: In case of an accident or car trouble on the road, particularly on a dark road at night, flares and-or emergency flashers are very helpful. These are available at most auto supply stores. Place flares 50 feet ahead and behind your car to alert on coming traffic of your predicament.

BATTERY JUMPER CABLES: This item comes in handy when you are stranded with a dead battery and another motorist comes to your aid.

TWO 4" x 4" WOOD BLOCKS: Make these long enough — about 12 inches — so they can be used to "chock" wheels when the car has to be raised with a jack. Chocked wheels prevent the car from rolling when using a bumper jack.

A DIME: Be sure you have a dime in the emergency box or some place in the cair in case you have to make an emergency phone call.

A DISPOSABLE WASHCLOTH: This is handy for cleaning hands after working on a tire change or other car repair job.

For additional information on items you need for car safety, contact your local 4-H Auto Care and Safety project members. If you are interested in helping start a 4-H Auto Care and Safety Club in your community, contact your local county Extension Agent, 4-H at 335-1150.

IT HURTS
The owners to leave this very attractive ranch style frame home, but they must move to another town and sell they must. Situated among similar quality homes, it has many features - such as convenience - there are two bedrooms, good sized living room, dining area, eat-in kitchen, utility room and porch. Economy - low heat bills. Level billing only $31.00 for gas and electric; low maintenance with shingle siding. The only painting is the trim. Another feature is the 1½ car garage, for storage and to keep the car safe and dry this winter.

Wrong people get the 'red carpet'

LONDON (AP) — The British Airports Authority (a government agency) is worried that the wrong people are getting the red carpet treatment at London, Airport—at the taxpayers' expense.

It is investigating a case where one of the four VIP lounges was opened for the butler of a South American embassy who arrived with his ambassador's silver cutlerly. He got the full treatment, chauffeur-driven car from plane to lounge, preferential baggage handling and free refreshments.

Said a BAA official, "Sometimes, the people we are told to expect do not arrive, and others who do not really qualify come in their place. It could be embarrassing to point this out."

Food price freeze set

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—K Mart Food Stores' freeze of 400 grocery prices for 30 days became effective today, and a spokesman for the stores said he hoped it could be extended.

Coy Wright, eastern division manager for Allied Supermarkets, Inc., which operates the 11 K Mart stores, said the freeze applied to K Mart's own brands but not to meats, produce or nationally advertised major brands. Those were excluded because of rapidly rising wholesale prices, he said.

"Prices on some items included in the freeze may be reduced during this period," Wright added, "but we absolutely guarantee they will not go up."

Among the stores included are those in Lorain, Youngstown, Massillon, Akron, Canton and Eastlake.

The freeze included such K Mart items as frozen and bakery goods, household cleaners, canned goods and some general merchandise, Wright said.

Brown sued over money

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—An $8 million taxpayers' suit, claiming incompetency on the part of Ohio Atty. Gen. William Brown, has been filed over the handling of the Four Seasons Nursing Homes case.

Jack Walker of Columbus filed the suit Tuesday in Franklin County Common Pleas Court, seeking damages from Brown and three assistant attorneys general.

Walker says Brown was negligent and incompetent for failing to file a form which would have removed Ohio's claim for damages from a group of Four Seasons creditors whose cases were heard in Oklahoma courts.

Walker's suit contends failure to file the form cost the state $4 million in damages and interest.

Brown, who said earlier that the form was missed in an oversight, was unavailable for comment.

Former parolee freed of charge

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — James LeBoeuf is again free after a man who had charged him with making menacing threats elected not to prosecute in Hamilton County Municipal Court Tuesday.

LeBoeuf, who in 1972 was protected here from extradition to Michigan for jail escape, currently is on probation for conviction in October of receiving stolen goods.

A court here refused to send LeBoeuf back to Michigan after civic groups and his employers said he had led a model life for several years.

Michigan then placed him on parole. The parole was completed in 1973.

Opening lead - king of clubs.

South got to four spades in this interesting hand and West led the king of clubs.

Declarer ruffed and played the A-K of trumps, hoping to catch the queen. When the queen failed to drop, South played three rounds of hearts, discarding a diamond from dummy, and continued with another heart.

At this point, West made a poor play when he ruffed with the queen of trumps, declarer discarding another diamond from dummy. South later lost two diamond tricks and wound up making four.

Had West discarded on the fourth round of hearts, as he should have, South would surely have gone down one. When declarer plays a fifth heart, West again refuses to ruff and South is now at the end of his rope.

He leads a diamond, won by West, who plays the queen of trumps to hold declarer to nine tricks. South winds up losing a trump and three diamonds.

Oddly enough, declarer can make the contract by choosing a somewhat devious method of play. After cashing the A-K of trumps, he leads a heart to the jack and ruffs a club, leaving himself with only one trump, the jack.

He then cashes the A-K-Q of hearts, West discarding a club, and continues with his last heart. West can do no better than discard another club, whereupon declarer ruffs his heart winner in dummy with the eight, and plays still another club which he ruffs with the jack.

South now has ten tricks to show for his efforts—count them—and has succeeded in hornswoggling the opponents out of the contract, having started with four losers and finishing with three.

Cystic Tumor on the Wrist

I had a small growth of my wrist for years. I paid no attention to it because it didn't hurt. Now, it's larger and painful while I work at a drill press. I've been told that it could be removed, but I'm afraid it will affect the movement of my hand at work. Can you help?

Mr. J.C.O., La.

Dear Mr. O.:

Your real concern seems to be about your capacity to function after the operation.

The kind of growth that you describe is probably a noncancerous (benign) tumor of the wrist, known as a ganglion. This is a cystic tumor which lies close to the joints and tendons of the wrist.

It is sometimes called a "weeping sinew" because it contains a thick gelatinous fluid.

Surgical removal of a ganglion is not dangerous or incapacitating.

Is it true that American Indians never develop coronary heart disease?

Mr. T.L., Conn.

Dear Mr. L.:

A study of a large group of Apache Indians in Arizona revealed that although Indians do develop coronary heart disease the death rate seems to be two to three times lower than that of the general population of the United States.

Their total calorie intake is lower than the average American. Indians eat very little cheese, bacon, whole milk and eggs—foods particularly high in saturated fats.

This seems to substantiate the modern concept that high cholesterol foods play an important role in the greater frequency of coronary heart disease.

Two emergency bills on Council calendar

Two pieces of emergency legislation will be considered by members of Washington C.H. City Council at the regular semi-monthly meeting scheduled for 7:30 p.m. tonight in the City Office Building.

City Manager Dan Wolford said Council members will be considering an emergency ordinance authorizing the city of Washington C.H. to act as a subcontractor for Fayette County in the administration of a Title II grant from the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act for the period of Oct. 1 to June 30, 1975.

An emergency ordinance determining the best bid and authorizing the city manager to purchase three new 1975 model cruisers for the Washington C.H. Police Department will also be considered by the city's legislators, according to Wolford.

Two items also appear on the city manager's report.

They are reports on bids for salt to be used on city street during the winter months, new police cruisers and radio equipment. Wolford will also be seeking permission to purchase protective coats for members of the Washington C.H. Fire Department.

County Red Cross preparing for annual Yule gift shop

The Fayette County Red Cross chapter is once again assisting the Ross County chapter prepare for Christmas at the Chillicothe Veterans Administration Hospital.

It has often been said that it is better to give than to receive, and past years have shown that the veterans would rather give than receive. However, the opportunities for these men to give are very limited since they have little or no income.

Therefore, the Red Cross sponsors an annual Christmas gift shop where the men can obtain gifts without cost. An assorted stock of new merchandise is needed so that these veterans can enjoy the warmth of giving to their loved ones at Christmas.

In order to stock the free gift shop, the help of area residents is needed. Donations of gifts from this area should be delivered to the Korn Insurance office, W. Court St., or to any volunteer at the VA Hospital.

Fayette County volunteers are Mrs. Margaret Bryant, Mrs. Joyce Bryant, Mrs. Nadine Rost, Mrs. Ruth Hyer, Mrs. Florence Bethard, Mrs. Virginia Lutz, Mrs. Dorothy Pensyl and Mrs. Angie Osborne.

Past experience shows that of each 100 gifts given by the veterans 45 are for men, 40 for women, 10 for teenaged children, and five for youngsters.

A list of suggested gift items can be obtained by contacting any of the above volunteers or Mrs. Leonard Korn at the insurance office.

It takes from 30 to 40 gallons of sap to make one gallon of maple syrup.
